SHIP RADIOS 'NO TRACE' OF SUB PREY

Sunk Without a Trace?—From 500 miles east of Boston, the British freighter Coulmore today sent a series of SOS messages of attack by a submarine . . . then silence. The Coast Guard cutter Bibb reached the reported position . . . and found nothing. Sunk without a trace? Photo shows the vessel on its last visit to Boston. Boston Evening American Photo

NO SIGN OF SUB PREY

In a dramatic race to the scene of a reported submarine attack on the British freighter Coulmore, 500 miles off the Massachusetts coast, rescue ships, U. S. war vessels and seaplanes sped today.

SHIP BEATS OFF U-BOAT ATTACK

GIBRALTAR, Nov. 1 (AP)—It was officially announced that the 4983-ton British steamer Egba was fired on today by a German submarine, but evaded the attack. She was believed to have continued her voyage undamaged.

The attack was said to have occurred about 240 miles east of the Madeira islands.

Another British Ship Sunk in Atlantic

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP)—The sinking of the 5317-ton British steamer Bronte was disclosed today with the arrival in England of her crew aboard a rescue vessel.

The crew of 40 and one passenger were rescued by a ship which attempted to tow the crippled Bronte to port after it had been attacked by a submarine.

The attempt at towing failed, the crew reported, and the Bronte sank.

Nazi Pocket Warships 'On Loose' Puzzle Britain

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP)—First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today that one of Germany's pocket battleships had been reported operating in the North Atlantic and another in the South Atlantic.

Churchill said evidence was conflicting on whether only two German surface vessels of this type were loose as raiders on allied shipping.

"But I think one may be sure that one of the Deutschland type (10,000-ton battleship) has been abroad on the ocean," he declared.

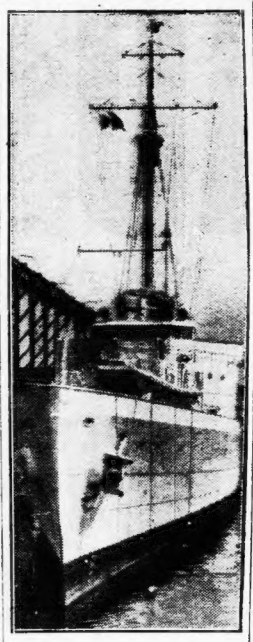
Churchill cited as evidence reports from sailors who were aboard a British freighter, Stonegate, when she was sunk by the Deutschland in early October.

Naval authorities last week said both the Deutschland and her sistership, the Admiral Scheer, were known to have been at sea a month.



COAST GUARD'S U. S. S. Campbell, which today was speeding to zone from which the British freighter Coulmore radioed for aid.

Norway Cruiser Trails S. S. Flint

BERGEN, Norway, Nov. 1 (AP)—The United States freighter City of Flint in command of a German prize crew felt her way southward along the northern Norwegian coast today with a Norwegian naval watch-dog close on her heels.

The appearance of the City of Flint off Lodingen was taken as an indication that the German prize crew had obtained permission to move in Norwegian territorial waters.

The Coast Guard Cutter Bibb was first to reach the reported position of the attacked freighter and found no trace of either ship, survivors or a submarine.

But no less than four other Coast Guard cutters were also converging on the area of the supposed freighter-U-boat battle.

And so were U. S. Navy destroyers, U. S. Navy seaplanes—and British and Canadian war patrols!

Mission of the U. S. vessels was officially stated to be "life-saving."

The Coulmore, a 3670-ton cargo boat, recently out of Boston and Baltimore, was listed as carrying 34 men and officers and one woman, the wife of her captain.

But life-saving was only a secondary mission of the Canadian planes and destroyers understood to be heading at full speed for the "attack" scene.

WAR IN U. S. WATERS

They were undoubtedly proceeding on the assumption that the trailing foam feather of a prowling U-boat's periscope had definitely brought Europe's war to American waters.

Leaking persistently through the dropped curtain of censorship was a report that the Coulmore, which left Baltimore Oct. 15, was still in American coastal waters today because she had made a flying, secret trip to Halifax to be armed with deck guns and a British navy gun crew.

If this were so, she might well be in position to fight off for a time any U-boat attack.

U. S. Coast Guard bulletins announced a heavy sea running and a 40-mile gale blowing off the Massachusetts, Influential chairman of the House Democratic caucus, in a speech urging congressional approval of the President's proposal for repeal of the arms embargo.

BULLETIN

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Nov. 1 (AP)—British naval authorities said today that a submarine had attacked a merchantman between Bermuda and Nova Scotia, but added they were unable to say whether the attack had been successful.

(The British freighter Coulmore radioed last night that she had been attacked by a submarine about 500 miles east of Boston.)

Because of war time restrictions there was no word as to whether British warships had gone to the rescue.

War Diary

61st Day

Behind the Front Finland's delegation to Moscow moved with hesitation toward the Soviet capital today for negotiations that are to be begun for the third time in an atmosphere described in Helsinki as "most serious" and involving a "major danger."

The perilous situation in the Baltic arose directly from the speech of Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav M. Molotov before the supreme Soviet in Moscow yesterday. While Molotov blamed the western democracies for the war and castigated the United States for allegedly acting in an unneutral fashion, the main danger seen in his address to the all-Soviet Parliament was his attitude toward Finland.

Today, in Washington, Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early broadly implied that Molotov's criticism of President Roosevelt was carefully timed to coincide with the vote in the United States on the arms embargo.

On the Land—Again today reports from Paris and Berlin differed as to actual combat on the Western Front although there was nothing to indicate that either side was active seriously. The Germans reported that scouting forces had invaded two French towns before the Maginot Line. The official French communique merely stated "reduced activity during the night."

On the Sea, in the Air—United States ships and planes sped into the Atlantic, 600 miles from Boston, to answer the S O S from the British freighter Coulmore, believed attacked by a submarine, but found no trace of the ship at the position given in the call for help. The American freighter City of Flint, in charge of a German crew, steamed cautiously down the Norwegian coast today headed for a German port, her situation delicate both as to safety of her crew and the status of relations between this nation and Germany. The British freighter Egba fought off a Nazi submarine attack off the Madeiras and escaped. The British also announced the sinking a few days ago of the Bronte in the Atlantic. All on board escaped safely. New aerial warfare broke out again over the Western Front and the French claimed that at least three German planes have been shot down in the past 48 hours. Berlin claimed six enemy planes were downed.

M'CORMACK DEMANDS U. S. RECALL ENVOY TO RUSSIA

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (INS)—A demand that this government recall its ambassador to Russia because of Premier Molotov's attack on President Roosevelt drew prolonged bi-partisan applause in the House today as it opened its second day of debate on the neutrality bill.

The demand was voiced by Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, influential chairman of the House Democratic caucus, in a speech urging congressional approval of the President's proposal for repeal of the arms embargo.

WAIT, PLEADS BARTON

Referring caustically to Molotov's Kremlin address of yesterday in which he scored the American executive for intervening in the current Finnish-Soviet negotiations, McCormack said:

"For that statement by the official representative of the Soviet Republic, the United States ought to recall its ambassador. That should be the answer of the United States to this attempt to influence the public opinion of America—this breach of international law."

Previously, a proposal that the United States "ask the allies now for a clear statement of their terms of peace" was laid before the House by Rep. Bruce Barton (R.) of New York.

Barton voted to lift the neutrality act arms embargo in June, but today took an adamant stand against the Administration's embargo repeal bill. He said enactment of this measure now "may be the signal to start the real war."

"Who knows, but that if we keep our heads a little longer, there may be a chance for peace?" he declared.

Barton asking that the House tell its representatives on a joint Senate-House committee to insist on keeping the embargo, asserted

Baby Beats Death In Milkman's Truck

A Dorchester milkman, between calls, today carried an unconscious, two-day-old baby to City Hospital and won a race with death.

RACE-WITH-DEATH BABY—Okay again, Roberta Smalinsky smiles up at her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Reddish, after the two-day-old baby was given a wild ride to City Hospital on a Dorchester milkwagon, treated and returned to her Roxbury home. Boston Evening American Photo

Also instrumental in saving the child was a quick-thinking grandmother, who rushed to the street with the infant after it had choked while being nursed.

RIDES ON MILK TRUCK

The grandmother rode to the hospital in the milk truck, holding the baby by the heels and spanking it in efforts to start breathing again.

The child which so narrowly missed death is Roberta Smalensky, born Monday to Mrs. Mary Smalensky of Vernon st., Roxbury.

She was nursing the baby early today when it choked and turned black in the face.

The grandmother, Mrs. Mary Reddish, and the father, John Smalensky, 30, ran downstairs to the street with the baby, and the father began hunting for a telephone.

MILKMAN HAILED

The milkman, Edward Finer, of Nightingale st., Roxbury, had just turned into Vernon st. when he was hailed by the coatless and excited Smalensky.

"No, I don't know where there's a phone," Finer told the father. "But I'll take you folks and the baby to the hospital."

Two miles over rain-washed streets and around slippery corners the milk truck rumbled, reaching the hospital in record time. The baby girl's breath had stopped by the time of their arrival, physicians said.

Nurses gave first aid treatment while Father Wilkie, a priest attached to the hospital chapel staff, baptised the child and christened her Roberta.

Soon the baby gasped, caught her breath, then opened her eyes and smiled as well as any two-day-old possibly can. Revived and in satisfactory condition, the baby was returned home to her mother in a hospital ambulance.

ONCE-RICH COUPLE DIE TOGETHER IN 27-STORY PLUNGE

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Samuel Walker and his wife, who through their 15 years of married life had never wanted to be apart, died together today because they were broke and desperate.

Only strangers, hurrying to work in the midtown section of the city, saw them die—two tiny figures hurtling from separate windows of a room on the 27th floor of the Hotel New Yorker.

He was 40; she was 36.

TALKED OF SUICIDE

They had had everything once—money, a nice apartment. Unfortunate deals in the butter and egg business had brought their financial standing low. They had given up the apartment, turned to living in hotels.

Last week Mrs. Walker went to West New York, N. J., to see her sister, Mrs. Helen Yeakel. She gave her some jewelry of negligible value.

Mrs. Yeakel thought little of the gift although she had heard the Walkers talk of suicide often.

They were extremely devoted to each other, she told detectives today.

PLUNGE TO DEATHS

On Saturday they went to the hotel, registering as "Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wilson of Detroit, Mich." For four days they talked of their future.

They smoked cigarettes and talked—endless conversations apparently lasting through half the night.

Early today they came to a decision. Their cigarettes were gone. Dawn was whitening the skies. They climbed to the window sills, stood a moment, then plunged.

The detectives found a dollar in their room, a few clothes, of good make but worn thin.

5 HUB ASSESSORS FLAYED BY MAYOR

In an action seen as a possible forerunner to a dramatic shake up in the city assessment offices, Mayor Tobin today blasted his board of five principal assessors for raising the assessments of 466 small homes in Ward 22, Brighton, while they were substantially cutting valuations of downtown business property.

He warned them to refrain from similar actions in other wards containing small homes, pointing out that the lowered assessment on a single unit of downtown property more than wiped out all gains to the city resulting from small home increases.

Emerging from his conference pale and tight-lipped, the mayor revealed that he had ordered immediate abatement of the Brighton increases.

At the same time, he ordered a complete report of all similar increases in residential wards, together with a detailed breakdown of decreases in the business districts.

It was understood that should increases of a like nature be found elsewhere, Mayor Tobin will again instruct the assessors to lower their valuations.

Possible increases in business property valuations to offset the potential loss of revenue, should drastic revisions be necessary, was seen in City Hall circles.

$200 TO $300 BOOST

The assessment increases in Brighton, all of them on homes owned by persons of moderate means, according to the mayor, ranged between $200 and $300 on each home.

Reductions on downtown properties, at the same time, ran into the thousands, he told the assessors, whom he suddenly called into conference in the office of Chairman Edward T. Kelly.

At the conference were Kelly and Assessors John P. O'Hearn, John C. L. Dowling, Thomas A. Dowd and John J. Walsh.

In City Hall circles it was freely predicted that the mayor's survey will uncover similar conditions in other residential wards.

ADMITS VALUATIONS RAISED

Assessor John C. L. Dowling admitted as much after the meeting with the mayor, but declared that no such general condition as prevails in Brighton exists elsewhere. He said, however, that many homes on which abatements had been made last year had had their valuations raised this year.

Dowling announced that the four deputy assessors would be called in for individual interviews.

The four and the districts they cover are William J. Morrissey, Brighton and Back Bay; Frank McFarland, South Boston and Roxbury, with part of West Roxbury; John Hayes, the rest of West Roxbury and all of Hyde Park, and Henry Hartmore, Jamaica Plain.

Unwed Mother Confesses She Strangled Babe

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—Virginia D'Amore, 18-year-old unwed mother admitted today, acting Capt. Richard Fennelly said, that she had smothered her 15-day old daughter, Mary, in Paterson, N. J., on Oct. 20.

The baby was born Oct. 5 in Brooklyn. After her discharge from Kings County Hospital she took her child to the home of her father. Police said she feared the baby would be taken away.

On Oct. 20, police said, she stuffed cotton batting into the baby's mouth, sealed it with adhesive tape, rolled the child in a blanket, placed it in a shopping bag and checked it at the Erie railroad station in Paterson. The baggage master found it six days later. Police established the identity of the mother by tracing the baby's footprints.

U. S. Maps Court Battle Over Flint

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (INS)—As official concern for the safety of the American crew aboard the captured freighter City of Flint mounted hourly, government legal experts quietly made ready today for a determined battle to regain custody of the vessel if it reaches Germany.

While the State Department emphasized that it is primarily interested in seeing that no injury befalls the Americans aboard, officials reported that legal strategy to repossess the ship is not being neglected at this time.

Diplomatic representations designed to insure the safety of the American crew already have been made by the United States government. British and German authorities were entreated to do nothing that might jeopardize the seamen's lives.

This plea was made by the State Department through its envoys in London and Berlin as press dispatches told of the City of Flint's dramatic dash to Germany through mine-infested seas, and through waters patrolled by British warships.

she was sighted yesterday off Lodingen light, 600 miles north of her, on her way from the Russian Arctic port of Murmansk to a haven in Germany.

At that time she was tailed by a Norwegian destroyer which served not as an escort vessel, but rather as a guard of Norwegian interests to make certain the City of Flint abided by rules laid down for her passage through Norwegian waters.

City of Flint Threads Through Norse Islands

BERGEN, Norway, Nov. 1 (AP)—The American freighter City of Flint, in command of a German prize crew, was believed in shipping circles here to be threading her way southward today through the countless islands off Norway's west coast.

No information concerning the vessel's whereabouts had been received at Norwegian ports since

Board Probes Navy Shooting

Meeting of a naval board of inquiry at Portsmouth, N. H., today disclosed that Boatswain's Mate J. L. Leahan of Watertown,, skipper of the Coast Guard boat AB-9, was shot and critically wounded yesterday while he was cleaning a .45 calibre automatic pistol.

While Leahan lay in serious condition at the navy yard hospital a board of inquiry met to investigate the shooting, which was believed accidental.

Members of the board were Capt. William F. Amsden, Commander Howard A. Trobou nad Lieut. N. J. Nicholas.

Leahan's hoe is in Summit rd., Watertown.

BOWEN GETS 3-MILLION SO. BOSTON HOUSING JOB

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—The United States Housing Authority today approved a $3,111,000 bid by the John Bowen Co., Boston, for construction of an 873-unit low rent housing project in the South Boston district.

The bid covered general construction, including slum demolition, plumbing, heating, electrical work and landscaping.

Works on the project was expected to begin by the end of the month and be completed within approximately 14 months.

DANCER WAITS HER SPY FATE

GENEVA, Nov. 1 (AP)—The prosecution closed the trial today of the Italian-born dancer known as "Nina" and three others on charges of espionage and treason by asking five-year prison sentences for "Nina" and one co-defendant, handsome Roger Joel, former draftsman in a Swiss arms factory.

The charges against them made sentences of from two to 30 years possible upon conviction.

Sentences of three years and 18 months, respectively, were asked for Private Detective Paul Rochat and his wife, accused specifically of furnishing political and military information to a ring of spies the government contended was headed by the dancer.

The court adjourned until tomorrow, when the decision will be announced.

Buckley Faces Accused Thief

HURLEY PORTRAIT ARTIST IN PLEA

Jacob Binder, whose portrait of former Gov. Charles F. Hurley was rejected last week by the State Art Commission, appealed today to the Governor's executive council "in the name of God, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and all its fair-minded citizens" to vote acceptance of the painting.

In letetrs addressed to each member of the council, Binder renewed his charges that the commission turned down the picture, intended to be hung with the portraits of other ex-Governors in the State House, on grounds of "racial and personal prejudice."

"Some of the members didn't even see the painting before they voted to repect it," Binder charged in his letter.

Obstacles in the way of his appeal being upheld lay in the fact that last week Gov. Saltonstall gave no indication of bringing the matter before the executive council in any event; and under the law the approval of the art commission must be obtained before the painting can be hung in the state house.

The members of the commission have threatened to resign if the picture is accepted.

Framingham Dust Row Ends

Framingham's novel "dust bowl" case ended in a compromise settlement in Middlesex superior court today.

Dr. William W. Loker, alleged to have caused a dust nuisance in a residential neighborhood by selling loam from 44 acres of his land, agreed to restrict digging and carting to half that area.

Town officials, for their part, withdrew their request for an injunction to halt the loam removal altogether.

Owners of homes adjacent to Dr. Loker's property had complained his sale of loam was contrary to zoning law provisions.

Woman's Work Day Includes Meal Hour

Meal hours must be included within the maximum 10-hour day provided for working women and children in an act of the last Legislature, according to a ruling by Atty.-Gen. Paul A. Dever.

Dever interpreted the act as meaning that a woman or child must do her entire amount of labor for one day within 10 consecutive hours of the same day.

HAIL HERO DOG SHOT BY BANDITS

Prince is only a mongrel, but the children in the neighborhood of Washington and Cherry sts., Cambridge, swear he's truly a "police" dog.

For Prince tried all alone to capture two handbag snatchers and was driven off only after being grazed by three bullets.

As a cop he wasn't much of a success. But as a friend he's tops. He knew something was wrong when two youths grabbed the handbag of Mrs. Bessie Weinberg of Cherry st., who runs a store on the corner. All it needed was the "sic 'em" of one of his little playmates and the 10-year-old dog went after the thugs, snapping and growling.

He nipped at the heels of the pair and might have brought at least one of them down if the thief hadn't drawn a revolver and fired point blank at him three times. One bullet skimmed the top of his head, removing a tuft of hair. That stopped Prince.

If a dog can be disappointed at not being able to help a friend that's probably Prince's feeling. But he has nothing on the handbag snatchers. All they found in Mrs. Weinberg's purse was 50 cents and some valueless papers.

Prince is owned by Mrs. Mary Thompson of Washington st., Cambridge.

Canada Speeds Mining, Says Gold Heiress Here

Canada's gold mines are working on a 24-hour basis, with armed guards patrolling the shaft heads night and day, a girl whose father owns some of them declared today.

Interviewed through her counsel, former Asst. Dist. Atty. Harold W. Sullivan, Miss Devnette Midford, of Montreal, attractive Canadian mining heiress, added that Canada is reconciled to a long war, but "there is a grim determination to see it through."

"Canada is as intensely loyal to England and the Empire as ever," asserted the girl, who is staying at the Ritz Carlton on her way to International Horse Show in New York, and thence to Florida.

Canada's production of the "sinews of war"—gold—has been intensely stepped up to meet wartime demands, said Miss Midford.

She reported a phenomenal gold strike in the region of Claw Lake, in Gowanda township, reminiscent of the old flush days—except that where prospectors once moved in by canoe, and in the winter with picturesque dog sled, they now use airplanes and tractors.

Miss Midford minimized the effect of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's recent remarks concerning possible annexation of Canada by the United States. She termed them "unhappily made."

"Canadians realize that what he said was his own personal opinion," she explained, "I don't believe it has in any way affected the relations between the two countries."

Love-Lorn Boy Kills Self Over Lowell Girl

LOWELL, Nov. 1—Alleged to have shot himself after a quarrel with a girl, Earl Scott, 28, of West Fourth st., New York, died today in St. John's Hospital here.

The youth was found Sept. 7 huddled in a Gallagher sq doorway, with a bullet wound in his stomach. Beside him was a revolver from which one shot had been fired.

Police said Scott admitted attempting suicide and told them he had been despondent after an argument with a Lowell young woman.

Doctors performed an emergency operation on the New York youth and hoped to save his life, but his strength finally failed.

DR. CHENG BAILED IN GIRL CASE

Dr. Ensang W. Cheng, 59, Chinese physician arrested in connection with the still unsolved disappearance of 16-year-old Catherine T. Dulong, was at his home in Reading today following secret release on bail from East Cambridge jail.

While double sureties of $10,000 were posted for the doctor, Henry J. McCue, a Woburn florist, who also is held in connection with the Woburn girl's disappearance, failed to win a reduction in his bail of $10,000.

The physician's release on bonds came as Chelsea police were attempting to identify a bundle of blood-stained girl's clothing found in Division st., Chelsea. Dist. Atty. Robert H. Bradford, state and Reading police, were given a description of the clothing.

Lieut. Cornelius Duggan of Chelsea police declaring, "a person couldn't bleed that much and live," began a search for records of missing persons in Chelsea.

Most promising clue to identification of the clothing was a series of laundry marks, which State Police detective sergeants were trying to check with laundries last night.

The marks read "J. C.-175," and "J. C. 176" and "J. P. W. Corp."

The clothing consisted of undergarments and a skirt, blouse and slip, and in the bag were several towels.

ABC Warns On Abutters

The State Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission today warned all city and town licensing boards in Massachusetts that notices of applications for liquor licenses must be forwarded to abutters, and churches, hospitals, and schools within 500 feet of the proposed premises.

Failure to give such notice might result in revocation of the license, the board said. The requirements apply to the sale of alcoholic beverages in hotels, restaurants, taverns, package stores, clubs and drug stores, and applies to new applications and transfers, but not renewals.

Newton Suspects Caught in N. Y.

Newton police obtained warrants today for three youths who were reported apprehended by Bedford Hills, N. Y., police in a car stolen last Monday in Newtonville.

Owner of the car, William Mitchell of Clarendon st., Newtonville, and two Newton officers will leave tomorrow for Bedford Hills to bring the youths here. Two of the youths are from New York and the other from Pennsylvania.

Nazis Stress Russian Aid As Repeal Reprisal

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Nov. 1 (INS)—Russian military aid to Germany in the form of submarines and battle planes was stressed by competent Nazi quarters today as a possible reprisal against lifting of the American arms embargo as the press and German officialdom hailed Premier V. M. Molotov's speech before the Supreme Soviet yesterday.

Molotov's address "met all expectations," an official spokesman decided. The Reich takes great satisfaction from the fact that Russian planes and submarines may be made available in almost limitless numbers "if Germany needs them to compensate for American deliveries to Britain and France."

Nazi quarters expressed hopes of a peaceful settlement of the Russo-Finnish problem, but authentic quarters emphasized that anything the Soviets may do will be all right with Germany. In other words, it is "Russia's own business," these authorities said.

At the moment, it was said, the German military machine is fully competent to deal with its enemies. Molotov's pronunciation of Soviet support of Germany morally, politically and economically is more practical and of greater immediate value than a formal military alliance, a spokesman declared.

With regard to the possibility of military supplies from Rusia, it was emphasized that Berlin and Moscow are in almost constant military consultation behind the scenes.

Millions of tons of grain and fodder are expected to be delivered to Germany in the next two months, thus relieving fears of a shortage of food for cattle.

Negotiations for deliveries of huge quantities of Russian oil, lumber, cotton, phosphates, flax, platinum and Manganese ore now are under way.

In short, Berlin expects the Soviet to supply the Reich with everything necessary to carry on prolonged warfare.

Russia 'Neutral' Is British View

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Headlines declaring "the Soviet is neutral" today summed up reaction of the British press to yesterday's speech by Russian Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff.

The British consensus concerning the speech was that it left Russia committed to a policy of neutrality and offered Germany "a packet of words and little else."

British officials, however, withheld comment.

Observers studied the speech in the light of current moves to bring about a trade agreement between Britain and Russia and the expression in Soviet circles in London of hope that such a pact soon would be concluded.

Great Britain has carefully avoided ruffling Russia's feelings in her diplomatic dealings ever since the war began.

It was recalled that Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax on Oct. 26, referring to Russia's share in the partition of Poland, said the Soviet "would never have taken" the action if Germany "had not started it."

Thinks Duce Will Never Fight Allies

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Nov. 1 (INS)—Reorganization of the government of Italy almost guarantees that she will never enter the war against the Allies, while Soviet Premier Molotov's speech intensifies the Russian threat against the West, and opens the possibility that before the conflict ends, the Red Army may participate actively on the side of Germany.

As Russia grew nearer to Germany—Italy backed away.

This was the interpretation in Paris today of professional observers intimately connected with the political scene in all three countries.

The most important item in Premier Mussolini's governmental revision is regarded as the appointment of Gen. Ettore Muti as secretary-general of the Fascist party in the place of Achille Starace.

The significance of his appointment for the third most important job in Italy is that he replaced Starace, who was an ardent pro-German, the same as Dino Alfieri and Gen. Alberto Parlaini, who also are out of their respective offices of propaganda minister and army chief of staff.

Muti's chief political platform is his loyalty to Ciano, who made him, first in the military field and second in politics.

The fuller version, not available to the French press, shows that the Soviet premier virtually announced Russia would not let Germany lose the war, but would back her economically to the utmost.

This means a great deal more than is thought by most people who demonstrate statistically how little Russia can furnish Germany in the way of commodities.

But the example of the five-year plan may be studied for a clue to Stalin's probable deliveries to Hitler.

Stalin considered the Russian five-year-plan a major political objective, and for the sake of importing the necessary machine equipment he exported sufficient grain, even though its exports meant a grain shortage in Russia.

In the same way, since Stalin now evidently considers it a major political objective to support Germany at least until the war has bled both sides white, he is expected to squeeze out of Russia what Hitler needs.

Thinks Red Blast at U. S. Was 'Timed'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Stephen T. Early, a presidential secretary, questioned today whether it was more than a "coincidence" that Premier Molotoff of Russia had criticized President Roosevelt at the time when an important vote was scheduled here in the House on neutrality legislation.

Molotoff said in a speech to the supreme Soviet in Moscow yesterday that the President had mixed in Soviet-Finnish negotiations "in contradiction" of the United States' neutrality policy.

Early said he did not know whether the President had yet read Molotoff's remarks.

He asserted that he himself had read them in the press, however, adding:

"I wonder whether the remarks of yesterday were purely coincidental. The Russian negotiations with Finland had been carried on in utmost secrecy over a period of about three weeks, I believe.

"The decision to speak yesterday and give the first revelations on the points being discussed between the representatives of Finland and Russia, whether by coincidence or not, seems to me to be worth considering as a question of timing.

(Mr. Roosevelt recently expressed to Russia his hope that it would take no step in its negotiations with Finland which would upset its peaceful relations with that nation.)

Early said the reading of Molotoff's remarks showed he had criticized the President for lending moral support to Finland.

"But it would appear," the White House secretary declared, "that he had something else in mind, because almost in the concluding paragraph of his speech he raises the question of the neutrality embargo, which if you recall, was timed for an important vote in the House yesterday."

Tropical Hurricane Passes Over Cuba

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 1 (AP)—A tropical storm originating in the Caribbean sea passed over the southeast coast of Cuba at 7 a. m., today and continued to move east northeastward about 14 miles an hour, the weather bureau here reported.

Last night forecasters said they believed the disturbance had winds of hurricane force (75 miles an hour or more) near the center. If the storm continues its present course, the bureau said, it will affect the southern Bahamas tonight.

Netherlands Ready For "State of Seige"

THE HAGUE, Nov. 1 (INS)—A state of siege will shortly be proclaimed in some districts of The Netherlands, notably frontier areas, Premier Dr. Dirk Jan De Geer announced today.

FINLAND'S ANSWER ON WAY

HELSINKI, Nov. 1 (AP)—A delegation empowered to deliver Finland's "final answer" to Soviet Russian demands headed for Moscow today, perhaps fo rthe last time.

The delegation, headed by former Premier Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, was ready to negotiate the dispute over territorial concessions wanted by Russia until the last hope of settlement faded, said a foreign office spokesman.

The negotiators set out from Helsinki last night, for their third trip to the Russian capital before Vyacheslaff Molotoff, Russian premier and foreign commissar, made his surprise exposition of the Kremlin's demands on Finland.

The delegation paused at the border to consult the government on the "new situation" ando then decided to continue to Moscow.

There was no question but that the Molotoff speech, disclosing secrets of the negotiations, was a sharp blow to the Helsinki government, which had been shielding the subject matter of the talks.

The foreign office earlier today issued a statement saying a "new situation" had been created, and that "naturally" there would be a delay in the negotiations. This had been taken to mean possibly that the delegation would be recalled to Helsinki.

Finland's Choice 'Sign or Fight'

MOSCOW, Nov. 1 (AP)—Finland, caught in the vise of conflicting European interests, apparently faced the choice today of making concessions and a territorial trade with Soviet Russia, or refusing at the risk of a fight.

Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff said the Russian proposals "are extremely modest and are confined to that minimum without which it is impossible to safeguard the security of the U. S. S. R. and to put on a firm footing the friendly relations with Finland."

He also commented that the European war was "fraught with great surprises and dangers for all European states."

The Finnish delegation, which has conferred twice with Molotoff, was enroute to Moscow with Finland's "final answer" when Molotoff disclosed what Russia wanted.

A strip of territory north of Leningrad, title to some islands in the gulf of Finland, a naval base at the mouth of the gulf, portions of the Rybachi peninsula and demilitarization of the Finnish border.

In exchange, Finland would be given a larger strip of Soviet Karelia, and Russia would withdraw objections to Finnish fortification of the Aaland islands in the Gulf of Bothnia.

Japan to Bolster Fourth Naval Base

TOKYO, Nov. 1 (AP) — The navy announced today that, effective Dec. 1, it would establish at Maizuru, in the Sea of Japan, its fourth major naval base.

Its establishment as a principal base is the first report of major strengthening of naval shore stations since the Washington naval treaty was denounced by Japan in 1934 and expired Dec. 31, 1937.

Britain Prepares to Ration Butter and Bacon

LONDON, Nov. 1 (INS)—The rationing that Adolf Hitler started even before the outbreak of war is coming to England in modified form soon.

Minister of Health W. S. Morrison told the House of Commons that before the middle of December the government plans to restrict consumption of bacon and butter.

The rations, he said, probably will be four ounces of each commodity per week for each person.

"In view of the present volume of home-produced and imported foods," Morrison said, "the government at present feels that rationing need be confined only to bacon and butter.

"It is hoped that supplies of both will later improve."

Morrison's announcement was the most emphatic official admission yet forthcoming of the success of German operations in the North Sea. At least 40 per cent of Britains' bacon and dairy products are imported from Denmark and other Scandinavian countries.

Raids by German submarines on neutral shipping in the North sea have seriously affected Britain's essential commerce with the Scandinavian nations.

British authorities, however, insist that the convoy system is proving effective and that the U boat menace has decreased since the opening days of the war.

The extremely slim rations announced by Morrison, however, indicated that Britain is either feeling the pinch or is determined to guard against any severe shortage should the shipping situation become worse.

Morrison gave a previous hint of his intentions a few weeks ago, when he told the House that his ministry was anxious to begin rationing "as soon as possible."

U. S. AID RUSHED TO SUBMARINE VICTIM

sachusetts coast were further indications submarine maneuverings would be handicapped.

PLANES JOIN SEARCH

The coast guard cutters dispatched to the rescue of the Coulmore's crew included, beside the Bibb, the Hamilton, the Campbell, the Chelan, the Argo and the Duane.

Most of these vessels had been engaged in the neutrality patrol established by President Roosevelt's recent emergency order.

Seen as likely to outdistance the cutters to the Coulmore's position were two coast guard seaplanes, one which left New York at 7:17 a. m., another which left Cape May, N. J., at 7:55 a. m.

The planes are heavy, long range flying boats.

Whether they would be able to pick up Coulmore survivors, should the freighter's crew have been forced into lifeboats, remained problematical.

Coast Guard officials intimated, however, that the principal mission of the planes was one of observation and liason.

In the rushed calls for aid, no mention was made of the captain and crew of the Coulmore, believed to include the one woman passenger.

She is Mrs. Ernest Davies, wife of the skipper, who was on board when the vessel put in at Boston last Sept. 8.

Repeatedly, the Coast Guard craft sent out calls for direction from the Coulmore, while coastal stations beat out a similar barrage to learn the vessel's fate.

No answer came after the third message "being attacked."

Tropical Radio at Hingham said first word of the trouble was picked up by the Standard Oil tanker Frederic R. Kellogg at about 10:50 p. m. last night but that signals were not plain.

STATIONS SILENCED

At 12:28 a. m. today, the Camperdown Station at Nova Scotia reported receiving a message, and six minutes later the Coast Guard station at Jacksonville, Fla., which had picked up part of the message, ordered all stations silenced.

At 1:35 a. m. the distress signals were heard more clearly. Nothing in the calls told of the nationality of the attacking submarine or what form the attack took.

At 7:30 a. m. the Navy and Coast Guard headquarters reported no further information had been received from the freighter.

"Is there any indication that the report might have been erroneous?" the Coast Guard officer was asked.

"No," he replied.

The U. S. Maritime Commission, which keeps in radio contact with American ships, reported no messages concerning the Coulmore had been received.

A dozen vessels, including the tanker Kellogg, turned for the Coulmore's position, but resumed their courses when the Coast Guard and Navy advised they would handle the situation.

Strict Navy censorship was clamped down on naval operations but shipping men pointed out two possible fates for the Coul-

In other attacks, the crews have been taken on board the submarine.

Other times, British vessels have been attacked without warning.

In the case of the City of Flint, the vessel's radio was silenced and a prize crew of the attackers placed on board to claim the ship.

The Coulmore, owned by the Dornach Shipping Company, Limited, is listed as plying between North America, Cuban and European ports. She is 3670 tons, 352 feet long and was built in 1936.

The phrase "SSSS Submarine," used in the call for aid, was deciphered as meaning "submarine attack." According to authorities it probably is a code now used by the British admiralty.

The attack scene was given as about 500 miles northeast of Bermuda, 400 miles off New York and a slightly less distance from Boston.

The Coast Guard cutter fleet making the dash to the scene are part of the neutrality patrol which was ordered by President Roosevelt soon after the outbreak of the European conflict.

Not yet has a submarine or foreign warcraft been reported by U. S. ships, but repeated sightings have been made by private craft from Eastport, Me., to the Gulf of Mexico.

U. S. to Act If Neutral Law Broken

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—If the British freighter Coulmore has been attacked within the neutrality zone, the United States will consult immediately with other American republics on what steps to take, it was stated today in official quarters.

The possible steps include a protest to Germany, should it develop that a Nazi submarine was involved. The protest might be by the United States and other republics individually or by all the American republics jointly.

Comparison of the position given by the Coulmore when she sent an SOS place her about 100 miles within the neutrality zone fixed at the recent Panama conference.

She gave her position as 62:31 degrees west of Greenwich, and the neutrality zone limit runs due south along the 60 degree line.

The American Republics did not agree definitely at Panama on what measures they would take in case the zone were violated.

They merely declared that:

"Whenever they consider it necessary they will consult together to determine upon the measures which they may individually or collectively undertake in order to secure the observance of the provisions of this declaration."

Mother, Mix Your Own Cough Remedy. It's Fine.

Quick, Comforting Relief. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

This well-known home-mixed medicine costs very little, but it gives delightful, swift-acting relief from coughs due to colds. It takes but a moment to prepare—it's so easy a child could do it. And it saves real money.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really splendid cough remedy and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time and children love its taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, you'll say it is truly wonderful. It has a remarkable action. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

French Rout 1000 Nazis, Save Village

PARIS, Nov. 1 (AP)—Military sources reported today that French troops had fought off a German force of 1000 men attempting to encircle a French frontier village on the northern flank of the Western Front.

The Germans were said to have attacked yesterday in an area extending from west of Saarlouis to the Blies river valley, east of Saarbrucken, but the identity of the threatened village was not disclosed, nor were casualties mentioned.

French sources said a heavy artillery preparation which preceded the German attack lasted at least an hour.

The grey-clad troops leaped from entrenchments in battle formation. A small French advance post in the village had been abandoned before the attack reached it.

The Germans held a cluster of houses only a short time, the French said, before a battalion of poilus of equal strength counter-attacked and drove them back to their original line.

The French said they took six prisoners and were questioning them today in an effort to learn the significance of growing German infantry and artillery pressure.

6 Planes Shot Down, Germans Declare

BERLIN, Nov. 1 (AP)—The supreme army command's communique today raised to six the number of planes shot down by the Germans on the western front and in North sea Monday.

Four of them were British, the announcement said. Identity of the other two was not revealed.

Yesterday's communique said four planes were shot down Monday.

Today's communique reported only desultory artillery fire and reconnoitering activity on the western front.

British-French Split, Nazi Aim

BRUSSELS, Nov. 1 (INS)—German pamphlets designed to split the French from their British allies have been showered on the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg by German airplanes, a dispatch to the Brussels newspaper La Libre said today. The planes, it was added, were driven off by French aircraft. The pamphlets read:

Frontline Frenchmen!

"You don't want war. Don't fire on your German friends, and we won't fire on you. England is responsible for the war.

"Down with the English!"

Often Many Women Have

STUBBORN BACKACHE

When Lazy Kidneys Are To Blame

Medical statistics say that many more women suffer from miserable, stubborn backache than do men—a fact we all deplore.

Much annoying backache comes from harmful acids and poisons that stay too long in the blood because the kidneys, whose work is to pass them out of the blood, fall down on the job—they grow sluggish—lazy—inactive.

Remember when kidneys are thus ailing, causing backache to bring daily misery, you may need a grand, good diuretic and stimulant that has proved so effective with so many. Get Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules—they have helped thousands.

Backache is often a symptom of inactive kidneys and dizzy spells, nervousness, leg cramps, getting up nights—difficult and scanty passage—puffy eyes and swollen ankles may also be a warning that your kidneys need flushing out.

Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules is a favorite diuretic—get a 35 cent box—ask for Gold Medal—the original—the pure—the genuine—right from Haarlem in Holland.

Don't be an easy mark and accept a substitute—Get Gold Medal—look for the Gold Medal on the box—it means a real pure kidney diuretic.

Swiss Fear Nazi Move

PARIS, Nov. 1 (INS)—A report that Germany has drafted a proclamation of major importance for address to the Swiss people reached Paris from Switzerland today.

The nature of the reported proclamation could not be learned, but the report said that Swiss anxiety was increasing. The Swiss federal council has prepared special instructions for dispatch to all cantons in the event of a pressing German menace.

Belgium Warns Both Nazis, Allies

BRUSSELS, Nov. 1 (INS)—Belgium will go to war with equal speed and determination if Great Britain, France or Germany violates her neutrality.

Such was the flat declaration made today by authoritative Belgian circles.

But the somber conviction either Germany or the allies must "come around the ends" of the Siegfried or Maginot lines before a decisive victory can be won was voiced by the same experts in both Holland and Belgium.

Holland experts said they could hold Germany back a week or 10 days before retreating to Holland's last line of defense, the Zuyder Zee.

Belgians gave the Germans "from three weeks to three months" before they could reach the frontier of France.

But a curious military situation is pointed out. If Germany conquers Holland the German army could consolidate its position without interference by Belgium, for there is no military alliance between the two countries.

Nor could British and French troops cross Belgium when asked by Holland to come to its aid. The Allies thus would have to make war almost solely from the air.

The possibility of the Allies landing troops on the shores of Holland could develop into another disastrous Gallipoli campaign. Holland's coastal waters are shallow and for the greater part Holland is hemmed in by a chain of small islands.

The tactical advantage of an invasion of Holland alone lies wholly with Hitler, it was stated.

Head-Hunters In New Outbreak

MANILA, Nov. 1, (AP)—A new outbreak of Christian head-hunting was reported in nearby Nueva Ecija Province today. Constabulary police said Ilongot killers beheaded four members of a family at an isolated village near Panta-Bangan.

Three influential Ilongot chiefs and their supporters, suspected of the killings, fled into the Sierra Madres mountains.

MOVE TO EASE WARTIME POWERS GAINS IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP)—A movement to ease the British government's far-reaching wartime powers over personal liberty appeared to be gaining force today.

Informed circles forecast a relaxation of the defense of the realm regulations after nearly four hours of debate in Parliament.

Singled out for attack as the delegation of power by which the government could control expression of opinion, suppress public meetings, detain individuals and impose a curfew.

By adding calcium to your diet

Improve YOUR PERSONAL APPEARANCE

The Great calcium carrying ALBERTY FOOD that changes personality

Before Use, 112 lbs. Five Months Later, 126 lbs.

Gained 14 Lbs. in 5 Months

Mrs. B tried various diets to increase her weight, and to build up her strength and [illegible] the course of [illegible] malaria, she started taking Alberty Food. Her weight was 112 pounds. In the first week she noticed an increase in weight and gradual return of strength and energy. Five months later she reported her weight at 126 pounds—a gain of 14 pounds.

BEFORE Weight 94 lbs. LATER Weight 109 lbs.

Mrs. A writes that she has been a semi-invalid and generally "run down" since the age of nine years, possibly caused by lack of minerals, but has slowly improved on the Alberty Food Products, gaining 15 lbs and looks years younger.

Before Use, 135 lbs. After, 185 lbs.

Unable to Eat Without Distress, Now Enjoying Best of Health

"I was often in pain after eating and obliged to rest in bed when I heard of Alberty Food. I gained 50 pounds in six months." In the beginning he existed upon an exclusive diet of Alberty Food as his resistance increased, he increased his diet. Now Alberty Food is no longer necessary.

Before, weight 128 lbs. 4 mos. later, weight 147 lbs.

Gained Weight; Physical Condition Improved

Mr. R. writes: "I had an attack of stomach distress due to hyperacidity, leaving me with a yellow coloring of the skin. I lost from 172 lbs to 128 lbs. I was induced to use Alberty Food. In four months' time I built myself up to 147 lbs and feel much better.

"Am inclosing snapshots which are self explanatory. You may use these in any way you see fit to advertise your wonderful food, as I am eager to help others who are suffering to regain their strength. (Signed) "W. S., Minneapolis."

Unretouched photographs of men, women, and children BEFORE and AFTER using Alberty Food frequently reveal remarkable improvement in personal appearance and look years younger. Personalities have been changed from NEGATIVE to POSITIVE; they report improved physical condition, FIRMER FLESH and increased "Pep."

Many people do not get sufficient CALCIUM PHOSPHATE and food IODINE in their daily diet to maintain a maximum efficiency. When deficiency of minerals exists, it is often reflected in their personal appearance.

CALCIUM PHOSPHATE AND FOOD IODINE

Many physicians and dentists advocate the use of these minerals in the daily diet. A lack of them also will often cause deficiency ailments. Books have been published on experiments on animals and human beings proving the importance of these minerals for normal nutrition of the entire BODY, FLESH, TEETH, HAIR, etc.

A recent article in the Journal of the AMERICAN Medical Association said that out of 4000 cases of illness in New York hospitals, only TWO were not suffering from calcium deficiency.

Stomach Distress—Relieved by Alberty Food

Thousands of people have reported a relief from stomach distress caused by acidity.

Over 1 Million Cans of Alberty Food Sold

ALBERTY FOOD provides calcium phosphate balanced with PROTEINS and other organic minerals.

Alberty Food has been on the market for over 30 years. Excellent results have been reported by thousands. Its continued sale has been due to its results with all classes of people. Its effect was first proved on infants. Mrs. Alberty offers $10000, if Alberty Food fails to do as represented for babies. Any baby who has never gained an ounce in its life will gain if fed as directed. Cretins and children who have a glandular disorder are excluded.

IF YOU ARE NOT FEELING UP TO PAR TRY ALBERTY FOOD. IT HAS YIELDED NOURISHMENT FOR THE AGED, MAL NUTRITION CASES AND EXPECTANT MOTHERS, ETC.

TELLS DIES OF RED THREAT TO HER SON

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (INS)—Mrs. Dolly McCuistion Crawford—mother of a Dies committee witness who was arrested yesterday in connection with a New Orleans labor union murder—took the witness stand today to tell the committee that her son had been threatened with dire consequences if he led and anti-Communist movement in maritime field.

This warning, she said, was given to her by Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, in his offices in New York last year. Curran, she added, had told her he was a Communist.

Editor's Note—Curran, in New York, promptly issued a sweeping denial of Mrs. Crawford's testimony, declaring the sole topic of her conversation with him was in connection with lack of word from her son who, Curran said, had enlisted with the Loyalists in the Spanish civil war. Curran also said that he had telegraphed Chairman Dies at noon on Monday that McCuistion was wanted by New Orleans authorities.)

FOLLOWS SON ON STAND

Following her son, William C. Cuistion of Frederick, Md., former Communist Seaman, to the stand, Mrs. Crawford also charged that Curran had boasted to her that Communists would take over the government and armed forces of the United States.

With McCuistion being held by Washington police for questioning by New Orleans authorities concerning the murder of Philip Carey, CIO organizer, Sept. 17, his mother was summoned by the committee to bolster his testimony given yesterday that his life had been threatened because he broke with the Comunist party after 17 years of Red activities.

Mrs. Crawford told of desperate atempts to locate her son after he deserted the Loyalist army in Spain.

After a difficult time, she said, she learned through Curran's office that her son had arrived in Norfolk, Va. Curran, who had given her wrong information at first, she said, explained that he wanted to have a little talk with her son before she did.

"GOT MILITANT"

"He said that he had talked to a number of fellows who had come back from Spain and they were adisatisfied," she continued. "He said that they are all wound up about it and that all they needed is a leader to start something.

"Then he got militant and said it would be an unwise thing for my son to lead an anti-Communist movement. He said he had more power and money and votes in Washington than we had."

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The fellow who said that there is nothing new under the sun must have been wearing smoked glasses. Did you ever hear of neutral war profits before?

That's the latest classification since the cash-and-carry days of 1929 when the brokers took the cash and the stretcher bearers carried you.

that this might help end a war "that nobody wants."

"This," he said, "is the most stupid, the most crazy, the most cockeyed war in human history.

"My plea is to keep the arms embargo and the cash and carry. At least let us not touch the embargo now, at this special session.

"Let us give the force of peace one more chance to work."

A former World War naval hero, Rep. Izac (D.) of California, declared that unless the course of world events were changed the United States would be forced ultimately to spened between 50 and 75 per cent of the federal government's income on national defense.

BAND OF GANGSTERS

Pleading for consideration of "the German people being led to the slaughter by a madman," Izac lekened Adolf Hitler and his followers to a band ofg angsters, arming themselves to "prey on their peaceful neighbors."

The Californian quickly got into an argument with Rep. Fish (R.) of New York, leader of the embargo advocates, by asserting that Germany got "tremendous" quantities of scrap iron, oil and other commodities from the United States in the last six years with which to build up her war machine.

Fish read into the records figures from Secretary Hull to show that Germany bought only $78,000 worth of materials here in the last eight or nine months, in contrast to $27,000,000 for Great Britain and $17,000,000 for France.

Izac retorted that while those figures might be correct for recent months, they failed to show the true picture for the last six years—the period since Hitler came to power.

Speaking on Democratic time, Plumley (R.) of Vermont, said he would support the Administration measure because "I'll not subscribe to any doctrine which involves the surrender of our sovereign rights."

"The proposed law," Plumley said, "is a step away from the probability of our being involved in the war."

Legion Mothers All Patriots But Shun Foreign 'Meddling'

A striking similarity of sentiment is revealed in the scores of letters sent daily by applicants for membership in the National Legion of Mothers of America, which seeks to keep the United States out of war.

Mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts of men of military age say they want it understood that in opposing the sending of American youth to fight and die in a foreign land, they should not be considered pacifists, much as they long for world peace, and that they would send their men, with their blessings, to defend the United States and would gladly take their places beside them.

GOLD STAR MOTHERS JOIN

A new record was hung up yesterday by the group headed by Mrs. Hannah M. Connors of Brook rd., Milton, when they enrolled 260 members of the Legion of Mothers in one day. This number added to the 250 turned in Monday, and, the 250 registered last week, totalled 760. Mrs. Agnes O'Callaghan of Fairfax rd., Milton, who like most of the other women, has a son of military age, aided this group.

Mothers! Sign Pledge on Editorial Page

Two Gold Star Mothers joined the Legion of Mothers yesterday. They are Mrs. Lottie L. Cummings of Orchard st., Beachmont, and Mrs. Catherine MacCormack, Shore dr., Winthrop.

Mrs. Cummings' story is the first told by a Gold Star Mother in the mobilization of mothers.

"Please try hard," she said, "to keep mothers from the sorrow and anguish we suffered in 1918. I lost a son then and have another of military age.

DAYS OF WAITING

"That's Douglas there in the frame," said Mrs. Cummings, a sad light in her eyes. "He was 23 when he died in a French hospital on Sept. 19, 1918, from wounds received in action at St. Mihiel on Sept. 12. He was in the 165th Infantry.

"I shudder even now when I think of those weeks and months of anxiety. I'd think of my boy out in the mud and the rain and the cold as I lay in my warm bed, tossing, worrying, sleepless. The days were bad enough, but the nights were worse.

"I prayed that he would be spared and returned to me. That's all you could do—worry and pray. I'd watch for the postman and dread his coming, as I saw him going from door to door. My heart stopped when I heard his ring. It was that way day after day.

"Then the blow fell. They told me my Douglas had died in the service of his country. There was a measure of comfort in that, but why did they have to fight and die in a foreign land?

"A week after they told me of his death, I received a letter from Douglas. It was full of hope and cheer. 'Mother,' he wrote, 'I have had many narrow escapes. One day a bullet ripped my cap, but God has been good and I'm O. K. Don't worry. I'll be home by Christmas.'

"I was the first Gold Star Mother in Massachusetts to go to France, in 1936, as the guest of the United States government.

"Must the mothers of America go through the tortures of another war that is not of their country's making? I have a son, Harold, 21—the military age. I don't want him sacrificed, unless in defense of his flag and country and where is there one better to defend?

"The Legion of Mothers is a wonderful organization with truly humane and patriotic aims."

The Legion of Mothers is motivated solely by American patriotism and to provide an opportunity for mothers to be heard.

For further information write P.O. Box 228, Boston, Mass., or call Liberty 4000.

ENLISTING of neighbors in the Legion of Mothers is done over the telephone by Mrs. Agnes O'Callaghan of Fairfax rd., Milton. She has a son of military age.

Snow-Bound Plane Holds Mother, Baby

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Nov. 1 (AP)—A mother and 17-day-old baby huddled today in an airplane, grounded by a snowstorm on a frozen lake in an Alaska wilderness, awaiting rescue.

They have been marooned for two days and nights.

The deep snows turned back a dog team, attempting to reach the scene from McGrath, 12 miles away. Another airplane, piloted by Kenneth Neese, was guided to the spot by the fading radio signals of the grounded ship and dropped milk, blankets and cooking utensils. A new attempt now will be made to effect rescue with a dog team.

The mother, Mrs. Christian Beckman, and her baby daughter were on their way home to Ophir from Fairbanks, where the baby was born, when a storm forced the plane down Monday. With them in the plane are the pilot, Jimmy Dobson, and another passenger, Ole Brendheim.

SAVE UP TO $1.48 A QUART

on Old Quaker Whiskey—Now 4 Years Old!

From Coast to Coast, Former Users of "Expensive" Whiskies Are Switching to Rich, Mellow Old Quaker! Why? They've Learned How to Buy Fine Whiskey, and Save Money Doing It!

● If you're a man who wants to save money and get fine whiskey too—here's some news.

Smart men who used to pay up to $1.48 more a quart for "expensive" brands, have learned how to buy a rich, delicious whiskey and save money doing it.

We wanted to know how this came about. Were these men buying Old Quaker just to save money? Or did Old Quaker's rich taste appeal to them still more? So trained investigators visited 12 states, 46 cities and asked.

Read These Typical Statements:

"What," said Milo Fender, Keithsburg, Ill., "me pay over $3.00 a quart for whiskey again? Not me, since I found Old Quaker saves me $1.30 or more on every quart, and is every bit as good."

"No more high-priced whiskies for me," says Frank H. Scott of St. Louis, Mo. "Old Quaker tastes as good, if not better. That's a saving of $1.35 a bottle."

Try It Yourself

Take a tip from these men's statements. Every drop of this rich whiskey is now full 4 years old and finer than ever—yet price is still remarkably low. Try Old Quaker for yourself, and see how it can save you money on every bottle you buy.

6 DEAD IN WAKE OF STORM

Six deaths were recorded today in the wake of the cold northeast storm which flooded Boston with the heaviest rain of the year and at the same time ended a serious drouth in rural parts of New England.

Most of the numerous accidents reported were caused by skidding cars on pavements slippery with rain and fallen leaves, police said. In many sections of Greater Boston, traffic was blocked by flooded streets and car tracks.

The latest death occurred early today in West Swanzey, N. H., where Charles Peters, 21, of Berlin, N. H., a CCC worker, was killed in the crash of a car into a pole.

Three Southboro girls, on their way to a Halloween party, were run down by a hit-run driver at the height of the storm and one, Hazel Wiles, 12, of the Fayville section, was killed. Her chum, Rita MacAran, 14, suffered two broken legs and internal injuries.

FOUR OTHER DEATHS

Other deaths included:

Mrs. Edith Bloom, 54, of Barre, killed in a Worcester collision; George Fullerton, 50, struck by a car in Windsor, Vt.; Earl Curtis, 28, hit by a car while walking in Lisbon Falls, Me.; and Luther Albee, 65, struck in South Portland, Me.

Most seriously injured of nearly a score of persons hurt during the storm was Harry James, 54, of Beacon st., Brookline, hit by a car as he was crossing Commonwealth ave., Allston. He is reported in critical condition at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, with a fractured skull, broken back and legs.

MANY FREAK ACCIDENTS

During the 26 hours of the storm, 3.06 inches of rain fell, causing many "freak" accidents, such as the cave-in of a 10-foot wall in Arlington Heights. Undermined by water, the wall toppled on an auto.

The weatherman promised a let-up in the downpour today, but indicated the skies will again be generally cloudy and more rain will come tonight and tomorrow.

On the Jamaicaway, near the home of ex-Gov. James M. Curley, one of the worst traffic tieups ever to hit that section occurred when the rush of water stalled cars.

In Cambridge 300 men worked throughout the day clearing leaves from the streets to lessen the flood danger.

On the first floor home of John McNeeley, a portion of the plaster ceiling fell, striking a visitor, John Connolly, 19, of Portsmouth st., Cambridge. He was not seriously injured.

Cape Man Shoots Self Facing Arrest

NEW BEDFORD, Nov. 1—Lawrence R. Snipman, 24, of Chatham rd., Orleans, not only resisted arrest, police said today, but he also shot himself twice, once in the leg and again in the head. He kept up the fight until hospital attendants were called. They put the Cape Cod visitor in a straitjacket. At St. Luke's Hospital it was said his condition was critical.

MARITIME PROBE ADVOCATED BY CIO

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Charging "co-operation, connivance and collusion" between the Maritime Commission and ship owners, the CIO Maritime Committee advocated today "an immediate thorough and open Congressional investigation."

The committee, an affiliated body of eight CIO marine unions with Joseph Curran as chairman, issued an 8000-word summary of what it charged were "anti-labor" policies of the Maritime Commission and the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation.

Ejorne Halling, the committee's executive-secretary, said copies had been sent to all members of Congress and heads of administrative departments.

Anticipate Mickey's 'Cracks,' Or Judy's---And Win Cash Prize

Cash in on your gift for wise-cracking!

There's $50 in cash prizes waiting and also 35 pairs of guest theater tickets—awarded to champion wise-crackers!

Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, now appearing at the Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters in the M-G-M production "Babes In Arms" are sponsoring the contest.

Every day this week (six consecutive days) the Boston Evening American will publish a special picture of Mickey and Judy. All you have to do is create wise-cracking conversation for each picture according to the expression of the youthful stars.

In other words: What is Mickey wise-cracking to Judy, or vice-versa. Best "cracks" will be selected by M-G-M officials.

WHEN YOU HAVE COMPLETED THE SET OF SIX PICTURES, mail your entries to the "Babes In Arms" Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

TO TELEPHONE USERS IN BOSTON AND VICINITY

BELL SYSTEM

AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH CO.

As recently announced by the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities, savings totaling $175,000 a year for many telephone users become effective today. At the same time, a faster, more efficient and more extensive dial service goes into operation in Metropolitan Boston.

As a result of wide extension of the direct dial area, any dial telephone in Boston and vicinity may now reach nearly 420,000 telephones by dialing directly. These include nearly every telephone listed in the Boston directory and all telephones in the city of Lynn.

These service improvements are made possible by many years of research by the Bell Telephone Laboratories and by this Company.

LETTERS ARE NOW ON THE WAY to all customers whose service or rates are affected by the new improvements, and the new Boston telephone directories, which will be delivered shortly, will include complete details of the new service. We call your attention to the introductory pages of the forthcoming directory for further information on our new and more complete service for our Boston customers.

The Telephone Business Office serving your community will gladly answer any questions about the new service.

Bank Insurance Gain Continues

The Massachusetts Savings Banks Life Insurance system continues to expand . . . Two more banks qualified as issuing institutions today . . . According to an announcement by Crawford H. Stocker, Jr., president of the Savings Banks Life Insurance Council . . .

THE NEW ISSUING BANKS . . . Are the Institution for Savings in Roxbury and its Vicinity and the Greenfield Savings Bank . . . This brings the number of issuing banks to 28, an increase of 180 per cent during the past 10 years . . . In addition there are 101 savings banks acting as agencies for Savings Bank Life Insurance . . . The famed system was inaugurated in 1907 as result of the efforts of a public spirited group of citizens headed by Louis D. Brandeis, former associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, now has insurance in force exceeding $175,000,000 . . . Of which more than $20,000,000 was added in the year just ended . . . The largest increase shown since the system was started . . . And it is interesting to compare the figure with the $7,000,000 in force in New York banks, which in February adopted a modified form of the system developed in Massachusetts. . . .

REMARKABLE . . . Service records are a feature of both new Savings Bank Life Insurance issuers . . . The Institution for Savings in Roxbury is the second oldest savings bank in Boston and one of the oldest in America . . . It was founded in 1825 . . . Present officers are chairman of the board, Charles Gaston Smith . . . President, Albert E. Gladwin . . . Vice-president and treasurer, Arthur B. Joslin . . . Assistant Treasurer Albert T. Carpenter will be in charge of the insurance department . . . William Blake Allen is president of the 70-year-old Greenfield Savings Bank . . . Herbert N. Kelley is treasurer . . . Lester Clapp will manage the new insurance department . . .

BUSINESS ACTIVITY . . . Gained less slowly in the latest week reported . . . As the chart shows a more sedate pace gradually replaced the early war boom . . . But strangely, and it must bother the pessimists, the slower rate of gain is due to wholly domestic influences . . . Failure of belligerent buying actually had no tangible effect . . . Instead, the continued shutdown of a major auto plant affected the index sufficiently to slow the upturn . . . Since a drop in total output resulted in that important component losing from the level of a week previous . . .

STOCK MARKET . . . Seers have taken recent price action apart and put it together again so often in the past two weeks it's a wonder the ticker still runs . . . Nonetheless they cannot find anything to explain the desultory action . . . While the dispirited showing of steels and other key groups in the last two sessions comes close to wrecking their upside hopes . . . We think the answer lies outside the stock market . . . And is found in recent weakness in key commodity prices such as sugar and cotton . . . With these staples unsteady at such a critical point the market is hard put to hold up, let alone move ahead . . .

• • •

NOTEBOOK . . . We hear Certain-Teed Products had the best third quarter in 10 years . . . Which encouraged estimators to place net for the second half of the year at $6 per preferred share . . . But since the company is believed anxious to build up earned surplus dividends are not expected . . . Standard Brands earnings estimates are running under 1938 results . . . With substance lent the lower figures by company's recent action in reducing the quarterly dividend on the common from 12½ to 10 cents per share . . .

Q AND A BOX

P. A. T., Providence . . . The food and store stocks have been held back by war talk . . . It is to be expected . . . In the event of peace all should do very well . . . Personally, we would not buy until after the first market fall . . .

T. A. C., Woburn . . . We had note on sugar Monday . . . As you mention quota and production troubles are as big a problem as fears of peace . . . Correction undergone by both staple itself and stocks brings them near temporary buying level, in our opinion . . .

T. I. M., Boston . . . The General Steel Castings comment was not clear . . . Our fault . . . We had the preferred in mind . . . But intended to emphasize the bonds . . . The first 5½'s . . . A strictly "business man's" risk . . . The common is very closely held . . .

J. A. N., Boston . . . United Gas Improvement is a slow mover . . . The coppers were disappointing war babies . . . Remember, however, France and England, particularly latter, have huge dominion supplies . . . They are far from dependent on U. S. producers . . .

STOCK LEADERS LOWER IN SPIRITLESS TRADE

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—While real selling pressure was absent in today's stock market, leading issues added fractions to a point or so to their decline of the previous session.

Dealings picked up a trifle on the downside after slow early rallying efforts failed to get any where. Offerings dried up later and scattered recoveries appeared.

Wall Street had plenty of sustaining domestic business news but the thought of a possible "corrective" letdown in the upward industrial swing during the next few months would not down. Traders, consequently, kept commitments either way at a minimum, with the inclination to lighten up predominating.

The speech of Russian Premier Molotoff, in which Germany was supported and President Roosevelt criticised for mixing in Soviet-Finnish negotiations, was hardly calculated to stir market bullishness brokers said. The Italian cabinet shakeup seemed more puzzling than otherwise. Reports a British freighter had been torpedoed in the American neutral zone were watched for Washington repercussions. The embargo repeal now before the House remained a neutral influence, inasmuch as the financial district all along has expected an administration victory.

Bonds and commodities were narrowly irregular and foreign securities markets without particular trends.

U S Steel and Bethlehem made a rising gesture at the opening but soon gave ground. Backward also were Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union, Anaconda, Westinghouse, du Pont, N. Y. Central, Montgomery Ward and Goodyear. A M Byers was an isolated gainer moving into new high territory for the year.

THE SKY RAIDERS

by Paul Whelton
Staff Writer and World War Flyer

BEHIND the line of hills the westing sun dips, and shadows linger longer across the low places, purpling as the night sweeps up and the crackling from the trenches dies.

High above the Vosges the sun still glints on the wings of four war birds, swift in flight, returning to the nest after a day spent in protecting great bombers in the historic wrecking of the Mauser munition works at Oberndorf.

Harried by determined and aggressive Boche Fokkers, the sluggish bombers now are attacked again as they drone the last miles for field and home the Mauser works destroyed and the German foe angered.

Down upon the score of bombers the Fokkers dive, but the four swift war birds dart again to the defense. A bomber falls, turning, tumbling, fluttering like a fallen leaf in autumn — and then another follows, and another.

But one of the four Nieuports pipes down on one of the Boche and in the golden light the white thread of tracer bullets unreels and the startled Boche turns a startled glance, slides quickly off on a wing, straightens, noses quickly up and rolls.

An old trick, that! The American trails like a surfboard rider.

Tac-tac-tac-tac-tac-tac!

Messengers of death speeding in that white pencil of smoke—and suddenly the Boche jerks upward, convulsively, and flame flickers. Then he lurches and half rolls, while smoke pours back. The black crosses go around and around. The Boche spins and the black smoke trails upward.

Sergt. Norman Prince of the Escadrille Lafayette—the founder of the American unit with the French forces—has scored his ninth victory in the air, but it has been his last.

Only a short few minutes now when Norman Prince of Boston will reach the earth, his body broken, his hours numbered. He will be third of four to die—four of those hardy seven who were the original Lafayetters.

Two of the flight of four Nieuports, seeing the Germans vanquished, have proceeded for the field. A third hovers about until Norman Prince re-dresses after his victory and takes up his course on the last lap home.

THIS third pilot is Raoul Lufbery of Wallingford, Conn. The two who have preceded are Lieut. Alfred De Laage De Meux, second in command of the Escadrille, and Adjutant Didier Masson, soldier-of-fortune from Los Angeles.

Night now is deep and Lufbery and Prince, as they pass over the anti-aircraft batteries, give the signal for the night—two long flashes and a short.

Lufbery barely misses the electric cable just over the trees but he does not realize it. From the ground he signals that he is down—and Prince noses in for the field.

The escadrille is fairly new to this field. Prince, too, has forgotten the cable. His landing wheels barely top it, but the impact is sufficient to throw the skittish Nieuport off balance.

Over on its nose it tips—and Fate decrees that at this vital instant Sergt. Prince's safety belt must snap. He is flung out to the turf as the stricken plane tumbles over and over, coming to rest a tangle of wreckage.

It is night of Oct. 12, 1916, in France. Back in Boston the Columbus Day parade of the afternoon is just starting. But in the shadows of the Vosges it is another sort of parade for Norman Prince.

Lufbery it is who reaches him first.

"Light some fires on the field, Luf," says Norman Prince, smiling, despite his mortal injuries. "You don't want another fellow to come down and break himself up the way I've done."

They placed him carefully in an ambulance, with two broken legs, a fractured skull and internal injuries. Lufbery went along with his mate, and Prince sang on the way to Gerardmer. Three days later he was dead, but he died knowing he had been promoted to sub-lieutenant and decorated with the Legion of Honor.

A social favorite, a gentleman and a sportsman, Prince was the younger of two sons of Frederick Henry Prince, Boston banker, and Abigail Norman Prince, and a grandson of former Mayor Frederick O. Prince of Boston.

Born at Pride's Crossing on Aug. 31, 1887, the flyer was graduated from Groton School, and entered Harvard in 1905, completing the course in three years. Another three years and he received his law degree at Harvard in 1911.

In that August he surprised his friends as well as his parents by qualifying as an air pilot at the Squantum meet.

ALWAYS interested as a boy in horses, he participated in the dangerous sport of steeplechasing and became an expert at polo, playing at all the big fields of the East.

When war was declared in August, 1914, his thoughts naturally turned to France, the country he had grown to love and admire, almost as his own, from several stays at Pau.

He was in Marblehead with Frazier Curtis of Boston when he conceived the idea of the American escadrille. Frazier believing that his own lack of knowledge of the French language might prove a handicap, desired to enlist as a flyer with the British.

Prince sailed for France on Jan. 20, 1915, on the Rochambeau, signed French enlistment papers May 4 and was assigned for aviation training at Pau, where he was right at home.

During the interval before his enlistment, however, he had been engaged in attempting to interest the French in the American flying unit, but meeting many obstacles, chiefly because of the neutrality of the United States.

However, Prince obtained support from Jacques and Paul de Lesseps, members of the Air Guard of Paris, and from Robert W. Bliss and Robert Chanler.

ON APRIL 20, 1916, Prince saw his idea come to fruition when the Escadrille, officially the N 124 (Nieuport Squadron 124) was assigned to duty at Luxeuil with these seven Americans as the original members—Prince, William Thaw of Pittsburgh, a nephew of Harry K. Thaw; Victor Chapman of New York; Kiffin Yates Rockwell of Asheville, N. C.; James R. McConnell of Carthage, Mo.; Elliot Christopher Cowdin of New York, and Bert Hall of Higginsville, Mo.

Of these, only Thaw, Cowdin and Hall are alive, the last-named still a restless rover but halting periodically in Hollywood to write a bit for pictures.

In the year intervening between the time he broached his idea of the escadrille and the date it was born, Norman Prince had been flying for France. Breveted as a pilot May 1, 1915, he was soon at the front, chauffeuring Voisin-Cannon bombing planes.

He did not like it. Always his dream was of pursuit work, with the Americans fighting together.

He trained as a chasseur upon his return and went over the lines first as a pursuit pilot with establishment of his long-dreamed of Escadrille Lafayette, which ultimately was to draw so many American fliers that it was necessary to enlarge the original into the Lafayette Flying Corps, with members of the corps assigned to various French escadrilles.

On June 18, 1916, the Escadrille Lafayette pilots had one of their first serious set-tos with the Boche.

Capt. Georges Thenault, French commander of the Yanks; Prince, Kiffin Rockwell and H. Clyde Balsley of San Antonio, Texas, who had arrived May 29, were attacked over Verdun by three times their number of Boche.

Like Indians from the Americans' western plains, the Germans circled around the Yanks, firing at long range at the ambushed Nieuports.

Well, well—thought the Lafayetters—this is a hell of a note and the sooner we are out of here the better!

Best way out of this dilemma of overwhelming numbers, they came to the conclusion, was to cut their way through the part of the circling ring nearest the French lines, and after exchanging signals they launched into the sortie.

Guns snarling, motors wide open, Prince, Rockwell and Thenault picked out Boche ships on that side, engaged them and rolled through the opposition. Balsley found a more stubborn opponent.

In Balsley's thigh a highly illegal explosive bullet imbedded itself—then blew apart, tearing a great gaping hole in the Texan's limb, and with fragments piercing his stomach.

He dived but the Nieuport went into a corkscrew, flopped on its back and a case of spare cartridges dropped down on his arms.

Gushing blood and fighting off the heavy cartridge case, Balsley found himself tumbling toward the trenches, but with a supreme effort he wrenched the controls back, got sailing aright and then landed in a field back of the lines.

Soldiers carried him to safety and thence to the hospital, critically injured, where he was not made less apprehensive, Prince revealed, later, by the fact that he was decorated while in bed. Balsley had seen too many men decorated on what were their deathbeds. But he recovered.

Another member of the escadrille, Victor Chapman, lost his life five days later northeast of Douaumont, in the Verdun sector, when he raced to the aid of Prince and Lufbery, who were being hard-pressed by five German Fokkers.

CHAPMAN was carrying some oranges to Balsley in the hospital, but he turned aside to join the scrap. Immediately thereafter two of the Boches dived out of the fray and piqued for their lines.

A third Boche went tumbling down out of the dogfight, and then Chapman's machine, its wings buckling, turned over and headed for the earth, dropping like a stone.

Pilot No. 1 of the original seven members of the Escadrille had gone. Pilot No. 2 of this little group was Kiffin Rockwell, who was shot down Sept. 23, 1916, when surprised by several German Fokkers after he had dived on a biplane observation ship. The wings of Rockwell's Nieuport came off.

To avenge his death, Prince and the others redoubled their efforts in the air, the Bostonian soon knocking down one Boche and narrowly escaping with his life after an encounter with several more.

Before he went out on the flights to avenge Rockwell's death, Prince wrote his last letter to his mother at Beverly. It was dated Sept. 24, 1916, and said:

"DEAR Little Mamma: I am so afraid you will worry more than ever when you hear of poor Kiffen Rockwell's death.

"I know how anxious you must be with two of us over here. Keep very busy; ride a lot, go out to dinner and get as many other distractions as possible, so that you will not have too much time to think of us. (Norman and his brother, Frederick H. Prince, Jr., who had also become a flier.)

"As far as danger to us goes, we are trying to take as few chances as possible, consistent with playing the game.

"Did I write you that I had knocked down another Boche two days before leaving the Verdun district?

"I enclose a clipping from the Communique Officiel, with mention also of my Boche, who fell at Dieppe.

"Dear Mamma, I must stop writing now. We are going out to try to avenge Rockwell. Don't worry. I am doing my duty as safely as I know how.

"With much love to you both, most affectionately. Norman."

Just three weeks from the date of that letter—and the survivors in the escadrille were setting about to avenge Norman Prince's death after the fatal landing at Luxeuil.

And soon they were reinforced by Norman's brother, Fred, who joined the escadrille 10 days after the fatal fall, as the fliers were moving to the Somme. Frederick H. Prince, Jr., survived the war.

Norman's body was returned to Luxeuil from the hospital and buried with full honors—a funeral worthy of his life and death.

James R. McConnell, who was to be fourth and last of the original seven to die in the fighting (March 19, 1917), said in writing of the funeral:

"It was hard to realize that poor old Norman was gone. He never let his own spirits drop and was always on hand with encouragement for others.

"I do not think Prince minded going. He wanted to do his part before being killed and he had more than done it.

"Day after day he had freed the lines of Germans, making it impossible for them to do their work, and three of them he had officially shot to earth."

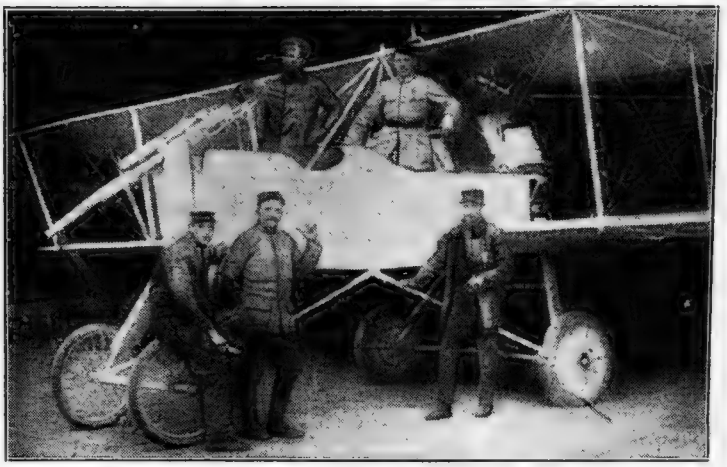
For more than 20 years Norman Prince rested in the soil of the France he had loved as a youth and to whose aid he had so gladly gone.

Late in May, 1937, the body was brought back from France to be taken to Washington, D. C., to remain forever beside the body of another who had sacrificed himself in the World War—Woodrow Wilson.

Norman's tomb is in a $200,000 chapel, named for St. John and built by his parents on the main floor of the Episcopal National Cathedral.

The Boston square at State and Devonshire sts., was named for him. In the State House, in the Grand Staircase Hall, is a bronze tablet in his memory. The Norman Prince Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, likewise keeps his memory green.



WORLD WAR PLANE—Flimsy structure of fighting plane of 1914 is shown here . . . with Norman Prince, founder of the Escadrille Lafayette, in the plane at right. In such planes as this, he scored nine victories over German airmen.

AMERICAN ACE—Sergt. Norman Prince is shown as he appeared while serving with the Allies in France.

THE APPROACH of the Boston municipal election imposes important obligations on all registered voters.

Now is the time for anyone in doubt to consult the Election Department at City Hall to make certain which is his ward, precinct and polling place. To delay the seeking of this information until Tuesday, November 7, is to invite confusion and probably to risk loss of the opportunity to cast a ballot.

This year the Boston electorate will choose one city councilor for each of 22 wards, and three members of the School Committee from a field of 22 candidates.

In addition, voters will consider two questions of vital interest.

The first asks: "Shall an act passed by the General Court in the year 1938 entitled 'An Act Providing that the Mayor of Boston shall be eligible for election for the succeeding term' be accepted?"

A "yes" vote means that the individual would alter the law to permit a Boston mayor to run for re-election at the completion of his term of office.

A "no" vote means that he prefers the present system which prevents a mayor from becoming a candidate to succeed himself.

The second question is: "Shall Section 8A of Chapter 44 of the General Laws, relative to submitting to the voters of certain cities the question of approving or disapproving orders authorizing the issue of bonds, notes or certificates of indebtedness for certain purposes, be accepted?"

A "yes" vote means that one favors changing the existing statute which gives the Mayor and City Council final say on borrowing money for all city expenses and substituting a plan whereby proposed borrowings, not including emergency loans or debts incurred under special acts of the Legislature, will be referred to the people when 12,000 Boston voters so petition.

A "no" vote means that the person wants the Mayor and City Council to retain the financial powers they already possess.

It is too late for the 80,000 unregistered Boston voters to have their names placed on the election rolls.

But it is not too late for the other thousands whose names do appear to study the candidates and ballot questions and to prepare themselves to vote intelligently a week hence.

FORTUNATE NEW ENGLAND continues to lead the nation's Recovery Parade. Last section of the country to be dragged into the depression, we are the first to shake off its shackles.

The New England Council optimistically announces that industrial activity in our six States has risen above the estimated normal.

Governor Saltonstall's survey reveals that re-employment goes steadily forward in the textile centers, where many factories are operating on three-shift schedules.

There are some who attribute the recovery to the war boom. There are others who believe it to be the result of improved conditions elsewhere.

We prefer to think that manufacturers, not excepting those who made the mistake of moving to the South and West, are waking up to the fact that New England's better climate, more highly skilled labor and superior popular intelligence are the combination which spells prosperity.

That undoubtedly explains why many companies are concentrating their industrial operations in this part of the country.

DOROTHY THOMPSON petulantly deplores the organization of American women to protect their country in a war-maddened world.

"Then there is the idea that 'war mothers' should be organized in block sentries to track down 'ism'," she scoffs. "That block-sentry idea has a familiar ring . . . The idea is sickening and disgusting."

Militant patriotism and vigilance may upset Miss Thompson.

But to most women, including millions of mothers, the thing that is really "sickening and disgusting" is the lack of militant patriotism and vigilance that would send American sons across the Atlantic to be butchered in an alien quarrel on alien soil.

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

IN A DAY when warlords and politicians are conspicuous, we are apt to overlook more important men who will get a higher rating when the returns are all in.

Less than 1000 men have contributed to the basic discoveries and processes which have made the modern world, and a nation's score in bringing such men out in front is to a great degree the measure of its real attainment.

This observation is touched off by the news that television will soon begin to filter into little roadside homes and that, again, it is a young American hayloft inventor who brings through the miracle.

He is Philo T. Farnsworth, 33 years old, who first discovered and applied the unique principle of electronic television. His story makes Americans appreciate their country and realize that in our age centuries of normal change are telescoped into a decade or two.

FARNSWORTH'S family moved from Utah to a windswept ranch in Southeastern Idaho in a covered wagon, when their boy was 12 years of age. He took with him on this trek over the mountains coils of wire, tubes and curious dials and switches of his own devising, mystifying to his family.

When he was 15, attending high school in the nearby town of Rigby, he stepped up to the blackboard and chalked up a clear and precise outline of the underlying problems of practicable, workable, electronic television.

Einstein interested the lad tremendously. Like Einstein, he played the violin and played it well. Science, mathematics and aesthetics overlap here. The boy knew his physics and his mathematics, and, seeking perfection of tone, he sought and found an understanding of the basic nature and behaviour of sound.

INVENTOR FARNSWORTH AND LABORATORY AIDE
"His Story Makes Americans Appreciate Their Country"

In high school, he was fortunate in having an intelligent science instructor, Justin Tolman, who waved him out of the lock-step, helped him get books and warmly encouraged his researches in the deep, shadowy domain of electro-physics.

The boy's mother was worried because this night-and-day concentration interfered with his violin practice. But the family had confidence in the boy and they, too, encouraged him.

America always has provided good soil for the nurture of genius, whether it be in Abe Lincoln's Illinois, Thomas Alva Edison's Ohio or Philo T. Farnsworth's Idaho.

FARNSWORTH RANCH was 50 miles from a railroad. Rarely did the boy see a train, but when he did he went home and made a perfect scale model of it. When he had two years of high school training, his family moved to Provo, Utah. His two years of special courses at Brigham Young University, at Provo, were cut short by the death of his father.

In Salt Lake City, George Everson, a San Franciscan, with a background of social service, advertised for some assistants in making a business survey in the city's community chest campaign. Young Farnsworth answered and was taken on. Everson quickly sensed the young man's superior intelligence and it was not long before the latter had revealed to him his conviction that he had solved the approach to television.

Everson then introduced the youth at the Crocker National Bank at San Francisco. They heard his story and provided financial backing for his continued research.

So here is television.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 1—We left Birmingham, Ala., escorted to the train by Mrs. Luke, who is one of the most meticulous of lecture managers in seeing that everything is done for your comfort. In one way, lecturing in the afternoon is rather nice, for it gives you a sense of freedom about your dinner and evening hours.

I invited two old friends to join us, Judge Louise Charlton and Miss Mollie Dowd, and we talked over many things.

I am particularly interested in the plans for the next conference on human welfare which will be held in Chattanooga, Tenn., in March.

It seems to me that this conference is most important to the South, because it will do so much in changing social conditions and in improving economic conditions, if the plans which they make can be carried through.

---

HERE, in Tennessee, we are spending the day in Memphis before proceeding to Oklahoma City, Okla. In Tennessee, which I always think of as the home of marvelous forests, I would like to tell you about an interesting little book which I have just finished.

Interest First Lady

It is "The Story of a Thousand Year Pine," by Enos A. Mills and particularly enjoyable because of the rather new idea it conveyed to me of the possible study of history contained in old trees when they are cut down. Here is the record of what happened in this particular countryside around the old pine over a period of a thousand years.

I can imagine how exciting it must have been to delve into these secrets of the past.

---

THERE ARE several things which I have not had space to mention in the last few days which have interested me greatly. In the Youngstown, O., public library I saw the first "mother's room" established in any library in this country, or for that matter, in the world. It is planned to aid parents from the time their children are little until they are grown. It has been extensively used by the Parent-Teachers Association and mothers' clubs.

I can see innumerable ways in which it would be of great value to the mothers of growing children.

Here is a place to find books which may answer questions coming up in daily life at home, to obtain information on the books which children should read; to gather material for the stories which children are constantly asking, and here are trained consultants ready to talk over individual problems or to lead discussion groups.

I wish there were such a room in every library.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—"The next big shakeup in Washington," a Federal official assures at Moore's, "will be in the Civil Aeronautics Authority. The changes will happen shortly"... "I just came from the Fair in a taxicab," Elaine Barrie confides at the Tavern. "The hackie let me drive the cab all the way. For once I had my revenge—skirting pillars and squeezing between cars, just the way cab drivers always have driven me"... "Broderick Crawford flew to Hollywood for retakes in the movie, 'City for Sale,'" a producer informs at Sardi's. "He had laryngitis—and so they put nitrate of silver in his throat, cured the laryngitis—but, as a result, Brod is back in New York now and will submit to a major operation to remove the cyst which grew there."

The Brighter Side

By DAMON RUNYON

WE ENCOUNTERED our 70-year-old neighbor, Mrs. Shaw, in a Broadway restaurant. She was with one of her grown sons from out of town and they were eating big thick steaks. We remarked that we supposed her son missed her home cooking.

"No," she said, "I spared all of my children as much of my cooking as possible. Occasionally I tossed up a little something for them, but it was only in great emergencies. I was always one of the worst cooks that ever lived. I made a man of Shaw by being a bad cook.

"I cooked for him when we were first married and lived in a little flat away down town. Shaw had a salaried job but he wasn't making much money. He wasn't very ambitious either. He was one of those fellows content to take things as they come. He was afraid to gamble.

"SHAW KEPT HOPING for years that my cooking would improve but it only got worse.

"I'll tell you a secret. I never tried to improve it. Shaw had no ambition as it was and I knew that if I learned to be a real good cook he would always be so anxious to get home to his meals that he would loaf at his job and never acquire ambition.

"MY MOTHER WAS one of the greatest cooks in New England. She cooked so well that father hung out around the house all the time just waiting for the next meal and got fat and indolent, and his business suffered.

"WELL, SHAW COMPLAINED about my coffee one day and I told him all he had to do was to let me hire a cook. He said we could not afford it, and I said we could afford it if he hustled more and made more money.

"FOR THE NEXT FEW WEEKS my cooking was worse than ever. Then suddenly Shaw started hustling. From being a contented and rather lazy man, he became discontented.

"He was on his job early and late and he worked so hard that he soon attracted the attention of his employers. Before long they raised his salary!

"WE GOT A COOK, but soon Shaw wanted a better one—and he worked all the harder to get it. He was always hunting a better cook than the one we had and, of course, each improvement meant more money. By the time he bought out his employers' business we had a regular hotel chef at five thousand dollars a year and a second chef, too. Naturally, we also had all the other luxuries that money could buy.

"I SELDOM DID ANY COOKING myself after we got the first cook, except when I thought Shaw might be loafing. Then I would give the cook a couple of days off and tell him I had to economize and I would cook a chicken pot pie for Shaw that would start him working like fury to prevent that sort of economy.

"SO I ADVISE ALL women to be bad cooks and make their husbands ambitious. If they don't want to work hard to earn money enough to hire good cooks, they will contract dyspepsia off bad cooking and that will force them to earn money to pay their doctor bills. It works out either way.

"Waiter I think I'll have another steak."

MAUREEN O'HARA SEEN TOP STAR

By Louella O. Parsons

Maureen O'Hara

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1 The acting plum of the year, Katharine Hepburn's role in "A Bill of Divorcement" goes to Maureen O'Hara, Charles Laughton's protege. Those who have seen her in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," say she has a good chance of being Hollywood's top 1940 actress. Discovered by Laughton and Erich Pommer, she made her debut in "Jamaica Inn" and so well did Laughton think of her that he brought her to RKO for "The Hunchback." Just before Maureen left for America she was secretly married to George Moore who I understand is writing her frantic letters hoping that he may either join her or that she can come back to England.

HELEN MORGAN

In the new "Bill of Divorcement" Adolphe Menjou plays John Barrymore's role of the father with Fay Bainter as the mother. John Farrow will direct. This is his first "A" picture and it is also Bob Sisk's biggest assignment as a producer. If it does for O'Hara what it did for Katy Hepburn, there will be no stopping the little Irisher

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond have leased the Malibu house where once Lilyan Tashman hostessed so many parties; Bob Taylor returns from Mexico today and Barbara Stanwyck couldn't be happier; Helen Mack is at the Cedars of Lebanon with a bad case of laryngitis; Binnie Barnes rented her house to Alice Faye and Tony Martin because she expected to make a picture in New York. Now the movie will be made here and Binnie is homeless; Helen Morgan stopped enroute with her troupe from San Francisco to Texas and made merry at the "It" Cafe singing torch songs; who was the unknown beauty with Cesar Romero at the Cafe Lamaze last night? Charlie Wininger played all the musical instruments at the Lamaze last eve and gave the paying customers a swell evening.

FIRST JUDY GARLAND and now Bonita Granville is a grownup young lady with an honest-to-goodness movie hero to make love to her on the screen. Fluffy-haired Bonita, who has had any number of arguments with her mother about remaining a little girl, today was signed by Paramount to play the grown-up femme lead in "Good Old Siwash" opposite William Holden. The amusing angle is that not only is Bonita a full fledged leading lady in this but before the picture is over she will be seen as a woman of 50 years. She's such a swell little trouper I am wagering she will make you believe she is middle aged.

DAILY STORY — Love's Power

I THOUGHT I was being neglected. My husband took me too much for granted. He spent his evenings reading and sleeping. I seemed to be of no more importance than the kitchen stove or the parlor rug.

At length I could stand my drab existence no longer. I resolved to look for excitement. I called a young woman friend and invited her to accompany me to a cafe.

Soon we had two men companions. At first I wanted to leave the place and hasten home. But after two drinks I was carefree and more and more inclined to "have a good time."

WHEN A RIDE was suggested I readily agreed, and we were soon speeding out of the city.

It had been raining, and the leaf-covered road was as slippery as ice. Yet no one realized the danger. We shot ahead —faster, faster, faster.

Then it happened. A sharp curve! Screaming brakes! Oblivion!

I woke up under a clump of bushes. My head was throbbing. I was covered with a sticky substance. To my horror, I suddenly knew it was blood!

There was shouting on all sides. Lights flashed. And an ambulance bell clanged unmercifully.

They were leaving! Somehow, I knew it. No one had seen me. The crash had flung me far from the road And my companions were either unwilling or not able to inform the rescuers of my plight and presence.

A HALF-HOUR LATER I dragged myself to the edge of the road and, using all my strength, stood up and leaned against a telephone pole.

A kindly motorist stopped. He said something about a hospital. But I implored him to take me home. I gasped the address.

In no time at all I was in my own comfortable bed. My husband and Dr. Greene bathed me and bandaged my wounds.

I tried to speak . . . to explain everything.

But John — dear John laid his warm hand upon my brow and smiled understandingly. "Rest," he whispered. "Tomorrow we'll talk."

Such is the power of love.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

THESE YELPS about women not getting the breaks in business—what's your opinion of them? Do you think it's true? Are men really antagonistic to women workers? And if so—what's your explanation?

Here's a typical protest.

Why don't you devote more of your space to defending the woman worker? Surely you must see the continual unfairness we have to endure. I've had fairly good positions with only fair good pay, and, oh, the antagonism of the men toward a woman who is employed in the same line of work!

I was talking with a friend of mine this morning, a school teacher, divorced. She said she'd learned you could not use direct methods with men, couldn't be honest and aboveboard with them, but had to continually resort to the supposedly feminine attribute—guile.

Surely there are men who recognize the essential difference of man and woman without the outworn idea of which is the superior sex. But if there are such men I've never run across any. ALICE B.

WHY DON'T men take women workers seriously? They DO—if women will take themselves seriously. But that's something we're often reluctant to do.

Theoretically, we have independence and equality—but we can't make up our minds what to do about it.

We don't know whether we want to be two-fisted humans or clinging cuties. The truth is we hope to have our cake and eat it, too.

We SAY we wanted to be treated Regular—but secretly we're YEARNING for some Big Cave Man to treat us rough and drag us off the payroll. Is it any wonder that the boys refuse to consider us one of the gang?

ADULTS have to look sharp and step lively if they expect to stay in circulation. But women don't suffer any more from this necessity than men. Then why yelp about it and pretend we've been done dirt?

It boils down to this, lady. WE GET WHAT WE ASK FOR. We establish our own rating, in business as in any other human relationship. The other fellow regards and treats you pretty much AS YOU TREAT YOURSELF.

And if men treat women workers as Knicknacks I suspect it's because we gals have a coy notion that we ARE!

DOES WILTING KILL VITAMINS? | CALOMEL—HOW DOES IT ACT?

By DR. WALTER H. EDDY

Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

Questions concerning foods, sanitation and health will be answered only if a stamped, addressed envelope accompanies your request. No exceptions can be made to this rule. Prescriptional advice cannot be given, nor can food or drug samples be analyzed. Address Dr. Walter H. Eddy, 57th st. at Eighth ave., New York city.

Less Rich in Certain Vitamins

"When carrots and other vegetables have been kept until their crispness is gone, have they lost anything besides water content?"

MES. M. C. T.

One reason for eating carrots and other vegetables is their richness in the disease-resisting factors known as vitamins A and C. Both of these vitamins are sensitive to contact with air or oxygen. Tests of market vegetables, contrasting crisp, fresh material with wilted, have proved conclusively that wilting is accompanied by considerable destruction of vitamin C and, to a lesser degree, of vitamin A. Of course the main loss is water, but with its withdrawal, oxidative destruction of the vitamins is easier.

Calomel Acts in the Digestive Tract

"Recently I read an article stating that calomel did not act on the liver and therefore was not good for biliousness. Will you please set me right on this?"

The word bilious means literally "full of bile," bile being the secretion of the liver and also known as gall. What is usually called biliousness by the layman is not due to excessive bile secretion, but to fermentation and putrefaction of food in the digestive tract. Calomel was once supposed to produce a flow of bile from the liver, and it was also thought that relief came from this bile, sweeping out the toxic products; and so we were told to take calomel to help our livers perform.

We know today that calomel acts in a quite different manner. Its mercury actually kills the germs that produce the fermentation and putrefaction. It also acts as a purge. In these two ways it reduces the chance of the toxic products being absorbed into the system and thus removes the cause of your "biliousness." The poisons resulting from food decomposition in the digestive tract go first to our livers, and that organ destroys them if they don't come too fast or in too great quantity. Calomel does, then, work for our livers, but it does its work by stopping the flood of poisons at the source.

Because calomel is a powerful destructive agent of living matter such as germs, it can also attack living body cells, and hence should be used with great caution.

The Good Housekeeping Way

"I am 48 years old and 5 feet 6 inches in height and weigh 190 pounds. I do not feel so well as I did when thinner. I would like to reduce some, anyway. I would appreciate a little advice."

MRS. E. W. J.

The desire to lose weight seems to be universal and, totally aside from the question of feeling and appearance, it is wise to watch your weight after reaching middle age if you would avoid a variety of bodily ills.

But there are many false notions as to how the reducing should be done. Some think that the end is to be attained by avoiding special foods. Some try to reduce too fast. Some fail in will power periodically and destroy all they have accomplished in the reducing period. With full appreciation of all this the Bureau and Institute co-operated in the preparation of a booklet entitled, "Reducing With Pleasure." Good Housekeeping Bulletin Service will send this to you for 15 cents. We are sure you will lose weight safely if you will follow the menus given in this booklet.

Cooking

Eggs Rich In Vitamins

By MARTHA LEE

Anyone who works with food knows that eggs used in any of the countless ways possible, give an all-round sensible richness and goodness that no other foods can furnish.

Fresh eggs today are grouped with milk as a nearly perfect food.

Eggs are one of our most important sources of vitamins. They give us an excellent supply of Vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin which protect children from rickets. They contain rich stores of Vitamin A, without which children do not reach their normal growth. In eggs we also find Vitamin B, without which we lose our appetites and develop poor digestion and nervousness. Lastly, eggs give us a good amount of Vitamin C, a potent preventive of diseases, and one which promotes general health.

And even that is not all the story. Eggs, again in common with milk, are rich in these valuable minerals —phosphorus, calcium, and iron— the importance of which doctors are stressing so much nowadays.

NEED CAREFUL HANDLING

Like milk, eggs belong definitely in the class of perishable foods and should be treated accordingly by all who handle them—the producer, the transporter, the candling and grading stations, the distributor and the consumer. You see the designers of mechanical refrigerators knew what they were doing when they added special racks for eggs, for refrigeration is necessary to preserve their fresh quality.

COOKING EGGS

For cooking, remove the eggs some time in advance of needs so they may warm to room temperature. You will find the yolks and whites beat up more quickly and to larger volume if allowed time to warm up after taking them out of the refrigerator. The warming can be hastened by placing the egg bowl into another bowl of warm water. In cooking fresh eggs there is one major rule to remember—use as little heat as possible.

EGGS BAKED IN TOMATOES

Cut slice from steam end of ripe tomatoes and remove part of pulp. Sprinkle inside with salt, pepper and finely chopped chives. Place in glass baking dish. Break one egg into each tomato. Cover with the cut slice and bake in a slow oven (300 deg. F.). After 15 minutes remove covers, baste with melted butter and cook until eggs are firm but not hard. Serve on round of buttered toast. Cheese or mushroom sauce may be served around the toast and parsley or watercress used for garnish.

QUEEN'S EGGS

Cut 1-inch thick slices from a round loaf of bread for each person. Cut out the center to make a case. Brush all over with melted buttter. Into each case carefully break one egg. Dot with butter. Season with salt and pepper. Bake in medium oven until eggs are set and bread cases a golden brown. Garnish with parsley. Serve with cheese or tomato sauce as desired.

SCALLOPED EGGS AND SHRIMP

4 hard-cooked eggs
1 cup cooked or canned shrimp
½ cup buttered crumbs
1 tbsp. chopped parsley
2 cups well seasoned medium white sauce

Slice the hard-cooked eggs and add with the shrimp and parsley to the white sauce. Pour into a well greased casserole dish, top with the buttered crumbs, and bake in a hot oven of 450 deg. F. just long enough to brown the crumbs.

Shoes Like Gloves

THERE'S such a neat, know-a-lady-by-her-gloves look to shoes this autumn that you can tell a current shoe instantly from one bought a year ago. For even in the budget-priced shoes like these, the exacting demands of high style design are present, the details are incredibly fine, and inserts of elasticized leather are a feature.

In this group of three suede shoes, all for dressy town wear, you'll find the sleek, slick look that comes from high-rise sides, and two of them feature glove-fitting elasticized sides. These are the high-heel numbers. For sheer exquisiteness we like the open-toe pumps. Still higher in side rise is the shoe with bow trimming. This is fully as high as a semi-oxford, and the marvel of elasticized inserts proves itself in the way this shoe fits and looks. A scroll bow and mudguard inserts of high lustre alligator grain leather are features of the suede pump with comfortably low heels.

You Can Be Beautiful

New French Perfume

By ARLINE GOULD

IT'S TIME to cap your plans for winter glamour by the exacting, careful choice of a new perfume . . . one that tells of the new you, that captures the current feeling in fashion and way of living . . . and it may well be one that's dedicated to the "Prince of Wales," the beautiful young wife of the former Edward VII.

It is so very new that there was a bit of suspense about its ever arriving here at all . . . what with war gauntlets to run . . . for the chemist in the French salon of the firm sponsoring it didn't perfect his formula until a little while ago, and then it was nip and tuck about getting it across the ocean.

Since the fragrance is dedicated to the romantic, sentimental Edwardians, you'd naturally expect it to have a flowery, bouquet base. And it does. Sweet and very high, yet anything but coy.

It's said to recapture the gaiety and elegance that was England in the '90s, the Edwardian era, with its rich fabrics, fabulous jewels, and never-surpassed frivolity. At that time Alexandra and her husband, then Prince of Wales, led the brilliant Marlborough House set.

Now, again, fashion recalls all of this for us—with the trend toward be-jeweled, be-furred femininity, with waistlines!

This fragrance has a very special English-lady aura . . . for, you know, the French of the same period were very gay, and so were the Czarists . . . but this perfume reserves itself to the British side of things, as distinctive as the beauty of English women.

It is available either in a crown-shaped bottle for $25, or in bulk at $1.25 per dram.

To learn about this new fragrance dedicated to English royalty, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, weekdays until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Love

And Marriage

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Has a wife the right to open her husband's mail, or vice versa? I think, if marriage is based on true love, the thought of jealousy and distrust would not enter into the mind of either party. My wife and I have been absolutely happy during our five years of married life. We both love and trust each other to the last degree.

T. R. M.

As you're both happy and trust each other so completely I can't see why the question enters into your married life. Personally, the idea of opening anyone's else mail is very repulsive to me.

RENO Rendezvous

by LESLIE FORD

JUDY WALKED over to the window and drew the curtains together. She turned back slowly.

"You know, Grace, I keep telling myself I must be developing a persecution complex," she said, with an attempt at a smile.

"Why, darling?" I said.

"Because the more I think of it, the less I can help think somebody's really trying to make the police think I killed Dex."

"It was bound to dawn on you sooner or later, darling," I said. "Everybody else has had that unpleasant idea for a long time now."

She looked at me with gray bewildered eyes, her oval face under her golden hair a pale inscrutable mask that belied her next remark.

"I'm beginning to be absolutely terrified. Mr. Martin went over all the evidence against me this morning.—I suddenly had the wild idea that maybe I did do it. And now . . . Vicki. Wait till they find out that Joe Lucas has taught me a lot of parlor tricks with a lariat."

She stopped abruptly, and went as if she had just remembered something, to the desk there. She opened the drawer and riffled through the note paper, her hands a little unsteady.

"I burned the sample letter, darling," I said.

She drew a deep breath.

"That's a break," she said coolly.

"—Unless you finished a copy including all its worst features, and it's still floating around."

She nodded, and gave me a quick little smile.

"I did. That's what I went up to Tahoe for the other night. Not that it matters."

HUMAN PARASITES

She came and sat down by me. "It wouldn't matter, anyway, except that I shouldn't have mentioned anybody's name. That was stupid. But I . . . I just didn't like the way Dex was playing up to Mrs. de Courcey. It wasn't because I was jealous—I already knew I'd never marry him, after I'd got my . . . divorce. You see, she's got a pretty big settlement from General de Courcey, and both Whitey and this Ewing were trying to get money out of her. And I almost begin to think Dex was too. I guess that's a foul thing to say, but I think he was."

"Don't you think," I remarked dryly, "that Mrs. de Courcey is quite old enough to take care of herself?"

She shook her head.

"Anywhere else, maybe. Not out here. Everything's so plausible and . . . and open, in Reno, that it's terribly hard to see it's all just part of an enormous build-up to get your memory. I loaned Whitey a hundred and fifty dollars to pay his mother's hospital bill, and Dex made him give it back to me—his mother's been dead fifteen years."

She smiled. I couldn't help thinking about Dex's mother. It had worked the other way, in her case.

"What about Vicki?" I asked. "Did she collect money from people too?"

Judy shrugged.

"Mrs. de Courcey probably gave her some. I know she gave her clothes. But only because she was really fond of her."

I heard the door across the hall open and close, and almost immediately open and close again. There was a knock at Judy's door, and Mrs. de Courcey came in as soon as we'd got it unlocked.

"My dears, I'm worn out!" she said. "I can't bear to stay in there by myself. May I come in?"

"Of course," Judy said.

Mrs. de Courcey lighted a cigarette. She was nervous and jumpy.

"I suppose you were talking about Vicki—it's too awful."

She turned abruptly to Judy.

"Were you here this afternoon about 2?"

Judy glanced at me. "Around then. Why?"

"I was just wondering," Mrs. de Courcey said. "Wondering if anyone might have overheard a talk she and I were having."

I stared quite openly at her merry, handsome commanding face under that marvellous henna hair.

She hesitated a moment. Then she said, quite abandoning her mannered garrulity for the second time since I'd known her, "It was that idea of being overheard that made me think of those little doors where you set the garbage tins in. They're quite big enough for anybody to open and listen through—easily."

I still stared, wondering if she was only trying to find out if she and Vicki Ray had been overheard, or was trying to say something and finding it difficult to say.

"In fact, if you're small enough you can get through them.—I couldn't, of course, but Whitey did, one afternoon when I left my keys inside."

She looked intently, and rather oddly, at Judy.

"In fact, my dear, I've been wondering if somebody got into your apartment that way, and put that candle holder arrangement in your bamper, to make it look as if . . ."

She waved her cigarette to indicate the rest of her meaning.

"I'm awfully interested in all this, of course—apart from you. I mean, Judy . . . and it's perfectly absurd of them to think for a minute that you did it.—You won't believe me, but they've had the police asking questions about me. The General's in a stew—he's afraid if I get involved in a scandal I won't get a divorce."

A CAST-OFF WIFE

There was something very startling in the complete disillusionment in her voice. I looked at her in surprise.

"My husband's retiring next month," she said abruptly. "He's wanted to marry . . . somebody for five years. But he couldn't, not while he was in the service. We had to keep face, so we went on. It's funny . . . to find yourself not needed any more—even for appearances."

She got up, went over to the cocktail bar and poured herself a Scotch and soda mechanically, not, I'm sure, even aware that she wasn't in her own apartment.

"I think that's why so many of us who came out here go so completely berserk, and take up with people we'd never know existed, if it weren't for the movies. The most extraordinary things seem normal here. I've loaned people money I know I'll never see again, on hard luck stories that wouldn't have deceived a babe in New York."

She stopped at the windows and drew the curtains apart.

"I never think what a cesspool Reno is, until I look up at the sky at night," she said abruptly. "Then people like Frenchy, and Whitey . . ."

She shrugged her shoulders.

"All of them . . . scrabbling around, sly and tricky, selling a $3 dinner for $1.50 as a come-on for their crooked gambling tables. If it weren't for the nights, serene and star-studded, I couldn't stick it."

She stepped out on the balcony. Neither Judy nor I said anything. After a moment I saw her glance to the right, and stiffen perceptibly. She came back into the room.

"That's odd," she said. "I understood Mr. Ewing was too . . . too ill to be out. I understand from Whitey, by the way, that he's not getting a divorce at all. He's an artist, of some kind."

Judy glanced at me, her deep fringed gray eyes lighting in the first sudden spontaneous and mirthful smile I'd seen in them since I came to Reno.

"I suppose," Mrs. de Courcey said, "that's why he doesn't seem popular with the men. Though Dex liked him. He was the only one who seemed to. You remember, Judy, he was up at his place at Tahoe quite frequently, you've probably seen him there."

A tiny surprised question darted through Judy's eyes.

"I wasn't ever up there but once, in the morning for a minute, to pick Dex when his car was in the garage."

"I used to come with Vicki and Joe Lucas, in Joe's car," Mrs. de Courcey said. "He must have money. He certainly dressed well, and I certainly saw him lose $600 downstairs one night."

She flicked her cigarette into the fireplace.

"Well, I'd better let people go to bed. You both look completely fagged. Good night."

She closed the door behind her.

I felt she wasn't thinking about either of us then, actually, and I was sure of it when I didn't hear her door open and close . . . not for some time after I'd gone to bed. I lay there, quite sleepless, thinking about Vicki Ray . . . wondering grotesquely if she had greeted the dark ferryman with her same breezy salute and her slow secret smile as she stepped into his grim stone boat to cross the river of Death.

I've wondered a number of times what actual difference it might have made in what happened later if I hadn't been standing at the desk reading my mail when Clem Bonner stepped out of the elevator the next morning, or even if the desk clerk hadn't said, at precisely the moment he was heading toward the door, "Mrs. Bonner's car has come, Mrs. Latham."

He stopped, crossed the lobby and came over to me.

"Hello," he said. "Where are you going?"

"Nowhere in particular," I said. "I just thought I'd drive out in the great open spaces and take a look at the desert."

CLEM'S PLAN

He hesitated. "Do you think Judy would mind if you drove me up to Lake Tahoe?"

"What for?" I asked.

"Nothing. I've just got to go, that's all."

I glanced at him there, hatless in the sun. He'd aged during this, I thought. Not that his hair had turned white, but his face was firmer, and harder, his eyes somber, with a deep aching hunger in them that he couldn't hide.

We went out Virginia st., past the road to the airport where I'd come in Monday evening, leaving behind us the hot dog and doughnut and fruit stands and the tourist camps, past the lovely big cottonwood tree on the left before the road turns off for Virginia City, and turned right near the hot springs into the mountain road.

The road was very steep after we left the flat, hot desert and began climbing—pitted from frost and covered with gravel washed down the banks with the melting snows.

Very suddenly we came out of a few scrubby aspens and pines, and rounded a sharp curve from which the universe seemed to fall abruptly away.

The car skidded crazily in the gravel. I grabbed the door. Clem grinned, and I tried to, but my hands were quite cold with sudden fright. Looking back at it now, I have a quite irrational notion that that was nothing more or less than some kind of foreshadowing . . . of what that steep winding road was to mean, of the horror that it was to hold for all of us.

What is Clem going to do? Don't miss tomorrow's thrill-packed chapter.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 1—Elizabeth Bergner sails Saturday from London with her entire company to open in New York in Sir James Barrie's play, "The Boy David," in the role she created. As we said, John Stein and Rowland Leigh bought the American rights, but when two months went by without word of Freddie Bartholomew, whom they wanted to play David, they relinquished their option. Miss Bergner will be seen in the Biblical character in a fantasy in which David fights Goliath. Barrie originally wrote the play for little Bergner and, while it wasn't a success in London, it may fare better in New York. If it is a hit Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will buy it for Mickey Rooney. Some way it takes a great stretch of imagination to see the pert, fresh Monsieur Rooney as the spiritual David.

New Shubert Play Still Seeks Title

Although the new Shubert musical, previously called "Three Blind Mice" and the "Gibson Girls," has a working title, namely "Three After Three," the Shubert office is still open to suggestions for a title.

The book is about three girls who own a chicken farm and decide to sell it to provide the proper background for one of them to capture a rich husband.

Among other titles mulled over recently for the new Simone Simon-Mitzi Green-Mary Brian musical, which comes to the Shubert Nov. 27, were "Betting on Love," "Three on a Match" and "Match for Match."

SYLVIA FROOS, radio singing star, is headliner of new RKO Boston stage show, opening Friday.

SYLVIA FROOS HEADLINES NEW RKO BOSTON SHOW

Sylvia Froos, of the air-lanes, head the new RKO Boston stage show, which stars Friday in connection with the screen attraction, Universal's "House of Fear," with William Gargan, Irene Hervey and Alan Dienhart.

Miss Froos has sung over the largest radio networks and has appeared in many screen shorts and on the stage.

Buster West and Lucille, in a skit entitled, "The Fleets In," will do a comedy singing and dancing [illegible] that has won them an enviable reputation in vaudeville. They will be assisted by Chick Gagnon.

Others on the bill are "Whitey" Roberts, Gwynne and Alvin Kendall and Dave, comedy gagsters, magician and dancers respectively.

"House of Fear," the film feature, introduces a backstage "phantom," who strikes death in full view of a theater audience.

'BABES IN ARMS' SETS YEAR'S ATTENDANCE RECORD

State and Orpheum Holds Over Musical Film 2d Week

Biggest business of the year is being done by Metro's "Babes in Arms," at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters. Of course, it's being held over.

This grand musical, co-starring Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, did a week and a half business in the first three days of its run last week at the Orpheum.

Rooney's the whole show in this film version of the Rodgers-Hart hit musical. He sings, dances, appears in blackface, false beard and mustache, imitates Lionel Barrymore, Clark Gable, even the President, in a fireside-chat sequence.

Joe Yule's little boy, Mickey, no matter what you've held against him in past performances, comes through like a million in this one.

His co- star, Judy Garland is another winner. Her nerve, infectious grin, undeniable acting and vocal talents put her at the head of the class. And even Mrs. Roosevelt, who has a swell sense of humor, must get a bang out of Judy's "My Day" impersonation.

June Preisser, playing a former baby movie star grown up into a glamour-girl in search of a second career, couldn't be better.

Others who do fine acting chores are Douglas McPhail, Charles Winninger, Grace Hayes and Guy Kibbee. Busby Berkley does an expert directing job.

The companion picture, "These High Grey Walls," is a prison drama starring Walter Connolly

'Golden Boy' Heads New Uptown Bill

"Golden Boy," with Barbara Stanwyck and newcomer, William Holden, and "When Tomorrow Comes," the newest Charles Boyer-Irene Dunne co-starring picture, come to the Uptown screen tomorrow.

'Key Largo' Has Opening Nov. 13

The mail order sale of tickets for "Key Largo," starring Paul Muni, is now in progress at the Colonial Theater, where the new Maxwell Anderson play will have a pre-Broadway engagement of two weeks beginning Monday, Nov. 13, with matinee performances on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Seats will go on sale at the box-office next Monday morning.

In the New York Sunday Mirror, Robert Coleman, drama editor, urged New Yorkers to obtain their tickets for "Key Largo" before it reached its Broadway opening with seats sold out for weeks in advance.

"You'd better beat the critics to their typewriters," he warned.

Reporting the results of a dress rehearsal in New York before the play started on its tryout tour, Coleman quoted one scout as enthusing:

"'Key Largo' is Maxwell Anderson's best play. It's got a sock like Dempsey's."

Another said:

"Paul Muni is terrific. The years in Hollywood haven't affected his acting skill. His is a performance that will have the town cheering."

Hibernation Death Fails To Daunt Next Patient

PRYOR, Okla., Nov. 1 (AP)—A 50-year-old man, a "hopeless" cancer case, is ready to seek relief in cold hibernation, undaunted by the death of a farm woman just three hours before she would have completed the nine-day treatment.

The woman's death yesterday was ascribed to a blocked gall bladder after an autopsy performed by Dr. E. A. Leach of Tulsa and Dr. V. D. Herrington. Dr. Herrington operates the hospital where the treatment was given.

"It's the only chance I've got and I'm ready to try it," said the man, a Sand Springs, Okla., resident.

The woman began the treatment after physicians said she had only two or three weeks to live.

Dr. Leach said the autopsy disclosed a soft stone obstructed the gall bladder passage, permitting bile to back up into the stomach and throat. Cancer had infected her abdominal cavity, liver, gall bladder and lungs.

Hibernation had not aggravated her condition, he said, but instead "the cancer tissue was becoming soft and was reduced in size about 75 percent."

Dr. Leach said an attempt to remove the gall stone would have resulted in "certain death" because of the woman's condition.

Hub Tax Checks Pouring In

Boston taxpayers' checks poured into the tax collector's office at city hall today, in the face of the interest-free deadline, which expires at midnight.

Real estate taxpayers whose checks were mailed before the city's clocks strike the beginning of a new day will not have to pay interest. Late payers, however, will have to pay interest amounting to 4 per cent per annum of the total bill, retroactive to Oct. 1.

Yesterday's "take" of $7,685,000 brought the total collected since the bills went out to $35,914,000—a little more than 58 per cent of the total tax warrant, which amounts to $61,000,000.

Seek Return of Dole Paid Wealthy R. I. Man

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 1—Red-faced city officials today studied the case of wealthy Anthony Cassetta, 59, of Butler st., recipient of welfare funds over a six-year period while he possessed resources totalling $100,000.

"We don't know how we are going to go about getting the money back," one official said.

Cassetta's financial standing was uncovered by the Department of Justice, which announced he was a dealer in Polish and Italian securities and had paid a recent income tax of $4000.

But to Newport residents, his life was most drab. He made trips to collect junk at the dumps and at various times had been on the rolls of WPA and FERA.

Snow Cruiser On Way After New Mishap

LIMA, O., Nov. 1—Admiral Byrd's monster "snow cruiser" Marie" triumphed over new obstacles here today after it had been overturned in a ditch, an oil line broke and the huge machine stopped again.

After two hours the break was repaired and the giant snow cruiser continued its lumbering way to Boston. The plunge into the ditch delayed the behemoth 12 hours on the schedule that was to have brought it to Boston by Nov. 7. Crowds along its line of travel also slowed its progress.

Dr. Thomas Poulter, builder and operator of the machine, said it would stop next at Akron, O., for tires, and again at Erie, to replace a damaged motor and wheel.

Louisiana Candidate For Governor Dies

TREASURY DEPARTMENT—Office of District Supervisor.—Alcohol Tax Unit.—Bureau of Internal Revenue.—Boston, Massachusetts.—Notice of first publication. November 1, 1939.—Notice is hereby given that on June 16, 1939, one Ford Sedan motor No. 18-3670923, was seized in Suffolk County, Massachusetts, for violation of the Internal Revenue Laws, to wit:—Section 3727, (a) Internal Revenue Code. Any person claiming an interest in said property must appear at the office of Investigator in charge, Alcohol Tax Unit, 919 Post Office Bldg., Boston, and file claim and cost bond as provided by Section 3724, Internal Revenue Code, on or before December 1, 1939, otherwise, the property will be disposed of according to law. SIDNEY SHERWOOD.

3—Hearings

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS.—On Wednesday, Nov. 8, 1939, about 9:30 a. m., a public hearing will be held in the office of the Board of Appeal, Room 907, City Hall Annex, in reference to the Appeal of William H. Ryan, asking to vary the application of the Zoning Law, Chapter 488, Acts of 1924, at premises, 1222 Centre St., Wd. 20, in the following respect: (Section 3). Permit business (storage and sale of furniture etc.) in a single residence district.

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS.—On Wednesday, Nov. 8, 1939, about 9:30 a. m., a public hearing will be held in the office of the Board of Appeal, Room 907, City Hall Annex, in reference to the Appeal of Fisher Business School, asking to vary the application of the Zoning Law, Chapter 488, Acts of 1924, at premises, 118 Beacon St., Wd. 5, in the following respect: (Section 4). Permit business (Private school providing a service customarily carried on as a business) in a general residence district.

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS.—On Wednesday, Nov. 8, 1939, about 9.30 a. m., a public hearing will be held in the office of the Board of Appeal, Room 907, City Hall Annex, in reference to the Appeal of Antonio DeLuco, asking to vary the application of the Zoning Law, Chapter 488, Acts of 1924, at premises, 160 Faneuil St., Wd. 22, in the following respect: (Section 11). Permit occupancy of building by more than two families, viz., three families, in R-35 (general residence) district.

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS.—On Wednesday, Nov. 8, 1939, about 9:30 a. m., a public hearing will be held in the office of the Board of Appeal, Room 907, City Hall Annex, in reference to the Appeal of Warren Institution for Savings, asking to vary the application of the Zoning Law, Chapter 488, Acts of 1924, at premises, 840-842 Centre St., Wd. 19, in the following respect: (Section 4). Permit addition to existing store and thus extend same partly into a general residence district and to exceed the allowable area for that part of the lot.

MONEY TO LOAN

HOW! $6.41 MONTHLY REPAYS $100 LOAN

| Cash loan you get | Amount you pay back each month including all charges | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | 6 months loan | 12 months loan | 16 months loan | 24 months loan |
| $ 20 | $ 3.63 | $ 1.95 | | |
| 50 | 9.08 | 4.87 | | |
| 70 | 12.71 | 6.82 | $ 5.06 | $ 4.49 |
| 100 | 18.15 | 9.75 | 7.66 | 6.41 |
| 125 | 22.69 | 12.19 | 9.57 | 8.01 |
| 150 | 27.23 | 14.62 | 11.49 | 9.62 |
| 200 | 36.31 | 19.50 | 15.32 | 12.84 |
| 250 | 45.39 | 24.37 | 19.15 | 16.04 |
| 300 | 54.46 | 29.25 | 22.98 | 19.24 |

Examine this table. It shows that $6.41 per month repays everything on a $100 loan in 20 months. Or $9.75 per month repays a $100 loan in 12 months. The faster you pay, the less the total cost.

One Price to All

These payments are calculated at House hold's rate of 2½% per month which is less than the maximum permitted by the Small Loan Law and are the same to everyone—one price to all. Only borrowers sign—no endorsers on any loan. No credit inquiries of friends or relatives. To apply, phone, write or visit office.

Auto Gossip

By OTTO SCOOPS

The dollar value of retail sales of new cars last month was 51% higher than the same month a year ago—A General Motors survey shows that 40% of all people buying used cars consult the classified section of their favorite newspaper . . . The Malden Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the automobile and trade show at the Malden Armory, November 2, 3 and 4 . . . Automobile exhibitors are as follows—Ferry St. Garage, Olds, Pontiac, Cadillac and LaSalle; the Malden Auto Exchange, Dodge and Plymouth; Main Motor Mart, Packard; Biltmore Motors, Chrysler and Plymouth; Malden Buick; Medford-Malden Motors, Chevrolet; Stout Brothers, Pontiac; Center Motor Sales, Willys; Malden Sales & Service, Ford; Aubin Sales & Service, Pontiac . . . Leon Nichols of Packard Motor was caught with a bad tooth on Sunday and rather than disturb his dentist pulled his own bicuspid himself . . . Make room for another courageous, unsung hero—Harry Paul of Paul's Tire attended a Hallowe'en costume party dressed as Shirley Temple . . . Charlie Barnes of Cadillac-Olds is trying to unload his '36 Olds so that he can buy one of the new nifty '40's—The girls of the above outfit have discovered how to reach the bag of candy that Jack Luce locks in his desk.

For a real trip down Auto Memory Lane, have C. Henshaw of Noyes-Buick show you his collection of pictures and papers . . . Leo Weeder of T. C. Baker's in Brookline Village reports the best October business since 1934 . . . The Berman Bros., Sam and Irving, tire merchants extraordinary of Columbus Ave., are keeping the many auto dealers who trade with them very happy and contented . . . "Who has the last laugh now?" will be Rae Smith's new tune when the salesmen at Murphy Chevrolet read that this personable secretary of Joe Murphy's is engaged to be married.

Jimmie Francisco, star salesman at Oakley Motors, formerly Fells Parkway, is a real hot shot when it comes to making sales—It's a treat to watch him . . . Nat Rosnov is rapidly gaining an enviable reputation with his youthful and pleasing manner of handling customers at Albany Motors . . . Mrs. Florence (Wolk) Edgers of Homestead Motors is to be congratulated and has our best wishes in her new home in Roxbury . . . Louis I. Yessen, recently nominated in the primaries for alderman of Ward 7 in Malden, is expecting plenty of support from Hy Myerow, Willys salesman—His many supporters in Malden practically assure him of victory.

Arthur Salvi of Main St. Garage, Camb., will say "I do" some time this month . . . Mrs. Odet, lovely stenog at Bowman Pontiac, Camb., can hardly wait for the Harvard-Army game . . . Sam Burstein of Malden Packard is pleased to announce the appointment of Max Coburn as general sales mgr. . . . Max is well known in this territory . . . W. Naylor of Mass. Motor Car Co. still reports mounting sales in both new and used cars . . . If you have the time it would be an interesting and worthwhile few minutes to make a trip through Crandall-Hicks to see the many small cars on display . . . Sammy Weinstein, well-known and liked dealer of Roxbury, is making Herculean efforts to keep his business up to its usual high level . . . Gordon Benway of the Henley-Kimball Co., Hudson distributors, kept plenty busy pushing sales on both his new and used car stock.

Roy J. Link, head of the Berkshire Trailer Co. announces the first Boston showing of the 1940 Vagabond trailer . . . Al Abbott of Cypress Motors in Brookline announces the sale of fifty used cars for the month of October . . . It's darned difficult to catch Dave Delaney of Blue Hill Pontiac napping. His supply of used and new cars is excellent and he reports good sales . . . Harold O'Neil's right hand man, Pat Russo, his usual buoyant self even in torrential downpours . . . With one of the finest looking showrooms in Greater Boston, Ed Cote of Cote Motors is building an excellent reputation in Mattapan Square . . . the service department of Harvard Auto, Ford dealers in Cambridge, is busy with it's winter service business.

Chicago Confession; Or, Lines on Faked Fights

A RICH, REDOLENT SCANDAL HAS busted loose in that metropolis of sport fakery, Chicago, where the state athletic daddies have barred Tony Galento, Max Schmeling, Yussel Jacobs and a piscatorial, class 2-B boxer named Harry Thomas for faking fights. The action was based on Thomas's deposition that he took pre-paid powders against Tony and Max at the behest of Yussel. Like the confession made by Eddie Cicotte, the Chicago Black Sox pitcher just 20 years ago, Thomas said he wished to wipe the smut off his soul and make his peace with conscience.

AUSTEN LAKE

It has been a long time since I saw, or recognized, a rousing, old-fashioned phoney in the ring and the last one was that November night, several years ago, when Jack Sharkey biffed over a sad-faced Negro named Unknown Winston as a preamble to his second coming. I hasten to say that I don't think Jack, who was pretty ring-worn, wheezy in the wind and spaghetti-legged, was party to the fraud.

That was the night when Winston swooned from the draft of a missed swipe and folded like a concert accordion under the ring ropes. It was an atrociously bad act and the customers pinched their nostrils 'twixt thumb and forefinger, knowing that no man could be so totally obliterated by a breeze. So you remember, maybe, that the State Commission ordered Winston to be scraped off the floor, dusted and freshened with sloshing from the bucket and put back to get knocked out some more. Which he was!

They Yelled "Fake" at Schaaf, Too

IT ALWAYS SEEMED A LITTLE ungrateful on the Commission's part that, when Winston succumbed to another half-hearted shove and went down in a second, self-induced stupor, they sentenced him to six month's hard idleness. The sentence implied that the guilt was not so much for fakery as for the fact that it was poorly performed. Many a good fake goes unpunished because the Commission's eye cannot detect the faint and wavering line between heinous flummery and honest unconsciousness. And maybe you remember, too, the night that Ernie Schaaf was belted down by Primo Carnera and the boys in the press rows hollered fake, only to discover too late for the breakfast editions that Ernie had died of a brain hemorrhage.

Now I find that nothing warms the cockles of one's indignation like a phoney fight. It tones up the whole moral system of the witness, who derives satisfaction from his own shrewdness in detecting bad faith on the part of the athletes engaged in the act. It sends him away with a glow of virtue which is very wholesome. For there are some of us who dwell in such spiritual sub-levels that the phoney fighter, jockey or wrestler is the only one we can look down upon.

Yet I confess that most of the outrage which I have displayed in print after some audacious mockery, springs less from indignation at an assault on manly sport than my impatience with people, on whom I have called the turn, for not admitting I was right. It is fashionable and high-minded to abhor deceit for its own sake and I suppose I pretended to do so when I actually enjoyed the plot and its execution and merely wished the artists to consent sportingly to be it when tagged. I just felt it wasn't cricket of them to refuse the fact.

Sam, Jack Admitted It

FOR SOME CURIOUS reason Harry Thomas has admitted make believe in his fights with Galento and Schmeling while he is still some way away from the end of his physical tether. But most of the fighters who tell about their boisterous, hilarious phonies are washed up, elderly hulks like Sam Langford and Jack Johnson. Johnson, now a lick-penny performer in flea operas, yells intermittently about pulling a barney with Jess Willard at Havana in 1914. He told it not long ago in a national magazine.

Langford used to stand, a blind pauper, on the bushy lawns at Pompton Lakes, regaling all comers with tales of "dives" taken for cake and coffee money, because white fight managers wouldn't risk their charges' chins against his dynamite unless he did. And friends among the managers of fighters, like Uncle Jim Carney, have related many fascinating adventures involving the use of the blood pill and capsules and the white tooth beans which created the illusion of carnage. Among the fight industries' most interesting gems was Georges Carpentier's insistence that the bout in which he lost his world light heavy title to Battling Siki, a psychopathic Senegalese, was a doublecross in which the African whistled a paralyzing right against his unsuspecting chin.

In closing I think I still prefer the old assumption that when two fighters enter the ring they are there to struggle sincerely, because it sets up a case of outrage when the bout turns into friendly make-believe. Outrage has an ominous sound though as a matter of fact, we enjoy it. The fight patrons of Chicago who were killed by Thomas, are getting double their money's worth in indignation now. Yet warn these same customers of an impending fake and they will tear off the front of the building to get in.

MECHANICS, S. BOSTON IN HIVE GRID THRILLER

And thus stood the pre-game statements of the veteran mentors of Boston's two grid leaders as they invaded National League field this afternoon to settle the city championship in the opening game of a doubleheader which was due to unload a lot of grief on somebody's shoulders.

Two stormy days have dampened practically everything in sight with the exception of the titular hopes of these two undefeated elevens.

As a matter of fact, it was so damp yesterday that the doubleheader at the Hive was called off, the East Boston-Roxindale game having been moved up as a co-attraction today with the Trade-Commerce tilt cancelled.

Both coaches felt confident of winning and both showed deep respect for the power of the other.

Coach Holland knew that he was in for a real fight. He thought that Southie would be tougher than B. C. High which tasted defeat for the first time when scrambled by his Artisans.

Previous to squashing the Eaglet's ambitions, the M. A.'s ripped Public Latin and Dorchester to pieces to establish themselves as the prospective pennant winner. The same eleven that did all this damage was

R. I. State Head Asks Athletic Scholarships

KINGSTON, R. I., Nov. 1 (AP)—President Raymond G. Bressler of Rhode Island State College revealed today that an athlete's tuition for summer tutoring had been paid from funds of the athletic council and advocated the establishment of scholarships for athletes.

Dr. Bressler's statement was made in an address before the student assembly as a reply to general student criticism of administration of the "blanket tax" fund financed by a $320 annual assessment on each undergraduate and to a charge made by a student that $72 had been paid from the fund for college fees for an athlete.

While admitting payment for an athlete's summer tutoring, he claimed the money came from income of the athletic council and not from the "blanket tax" fund, although both funds are lumped together.

Dr. Bressler did not disclose the name of the student whose summer tuition was paid nor the amount involved.

3 Regular Irish Take to Sidelines

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 1 (AP)—Coach Elmer Layden of Notre Dame said that three of his regulars, Tackles Tad Harvey and Tom Gallagher, and Left Halfback Bob Saggau will be kept on the sidelines by injuries in the 25th Irish-Army football game at New York Saturday.

Macdonald Sidetracked In New Harvard Plans

Capt. Torby Macdonald appeared pretty well out of the Harvard football plans today following the latest revamping of the backfield, which put Cliff Helman at Team B's tailback spot. Helman, former jayvee back, was promoted in the final shift preparatory to the Princeton game in Tigertown this Saturday.

Harlow's reshuffling of the backfield further indicates that Macdonald's best playing days are over. Charley Spreyer, whose sensational kicking has been the only bright spot of the season, is a fixture in the backfield and now that he has been moved to the injured leader's berth, it seems rather certain that Macdonald will have to bow to his sideline jinx.

CRIMSON DESPERATE

The revamping of the Crimson backfield looks like a desperate attempt to salvage something from an already dismal season. Harvard is defending the Big Three title with little hopes.

In the new backfield quartet George Heiden is in the important spinning position. Heiden does not seem to have much finesse, but since he played the spinning position on the cub team last fall, he should be able to adapt himself easily.

Harvard has been an easy prey all season, because the Crimson's aerial department has been a liability. Dartmouth and Penn had nothing on aerial maneuvers all week. They concentrated on stopping the Harvard running attack. The last two games show the dismal plight of the Cantabs.

Dick Harlow has been concentrating on aerial maneuvors all week. He has Charley Spreyer on the heaving end. Spreyer is a potentially fine passer, if he can get over his tendency to throw passes like a hand grenade. If the Harvard passing attack has improved to any degree the Crimson are bound to be a lot tougher.

HELMAN EXCELLENT PASSER

Cliff Helman, the new varsity back, has come up the hard way. He was a sub on his poor frosh team and has been playing with the jayvees for two years. Helman, a former Boston Latin player, is the best passer on the squad and that is why Harlow has elevated the 170 junior. Cliff is not much of a runner and does not kick at all, but the Crimson technicians hope that he will make the Cambridge group more dangerous.

KAVANAUGH HAUNTS TENNESSEE GRID BOSS

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 1 (AP)—Tennessee, the nation's No. 1 football outfit, stakes its perfect defensive record and Rose Bowl hopes against Ken Kavanaugh's pass-grabbing ability Saturday, and Maj. Bob Neyland is worried lest his team come a cropper in the argument with the great Louisiana State end.

"I don't believe there is a team in the country that can stop Kavanaugh from catching passes," Neyland declared today.

"Our scouts report that LSU is 50 per cent stronger than the team we beat 14 to 6 last year. Their running attack is more versatile, and there's always Kavanaugh."

Kavanaugh, whose dexterity at spearing passes has placed him at the top of the Southwestern Conference scoring heap with 54 points, was the last gridder to score on the Volunteers.

He put on his specialty in Tennessee's end zone here last fall.

The rangy Louisiana receptionist will be a marked man when the Tigers and Vola tread the field at Baton Rouge Saturday. However, the distinction isn't new to Kavanaugh.

He's been marked in every game this year, but has acquitted himself nobly—so nobly, in fact, that he's already being tabbed for All-America.

Mississippi held him scoreless in L. S. U.'s opener, but on successive Saturdays he scored four touchdowns against Holy Cross, one against Rice, and two each against Loyola and Vanderbilt.

CATCHES PASSES, TOO—Kavanaugh, Louisiana State end who crushed Holy Cross almost single handed, gets in a spare hour angling at University lake, near his home university. Ken has scored nine touchdowns and is a "sure thing" for All-America honors.

Rusty Nails Secret Of Kavanaugh Success

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 1 (AP)—Although this may sound like a publicity release from the hardware dealers, it's vouched for by Ken Kavanaugh and Young Bussey of the Louisiana State football team and by W. I. Spencer, football editor of the Morning Advocate.

Here 'tis:

Kavanaugh picked up four rusty nails along the sidelines of the Holy Cross gridiron. A few hours later he scored four touchdowns as L. S. U. trounced the Crusaders.

Just before the Rice game he found another nail near the battle scene. Score: L. S. U. 7, Rice 0. (Touchdown by Kavanaugh).

Working harder at his hunting, Ken found two nails before the Loyola game. Result, two touchdowns by Kavanaugh and another L. S. U. win.

Two more nails before the Vanderbilt game last week and a 12-6 victory for the Tigers with Kavanaugh again the score-maker.

(Ed Note—With Tennessee coming up Saturday, Spencer Solemnly affirms he caught Head Coach Bernie Moore buying some 60-penny nails. And anyone who knows his nails knows a 60-penny is very large and very easy to find.)

EAGLES SHIFT OFFENSE FOR AUBURN CLASH

By DAVE GLUECK

Boston College is pating for Saturday's game against Auburn with one loss and four wins behind them, and just about an even chace of adding another victory to their record.

Every one on the squad with the possible exception of Dick Harrison will be in top shape for the encounter for the first time since Lebanon Valley and Coach Leahy will be able to use the full power of his material.

The sad eyed Eagle mentor was busy diagraming new plays for the Southerners, and didn't seem perturbed by the steady rain which meant practice in the Boys' Home gymnasium for the afternoon.

He declared that the boys were going to put in a hard week with plenty of scrimmage today and tomorrow, with particular emphasis on the passing attack.

Since the Florida fiasco the B. C.'s have de-emphasized their aerial armament, and stuck strictly to straight forward stuff. Against Auburn, however, Leahy insists that the Eagles will have to take to the air again for scores.

Lou Montgomery, the dancing sparkplug may yet play against Auburn with B. C. authorities making appeals to Southern chivalry.

When asked if he wanted to play, Lou replied "Sure, I figure I have ten men on my team to help me from getting hurt, against their eleven, that's fair enough."

Leahy claims privately, because he doesn't want to be accused of alibiing, that if racial prejudice hadn't kept Lou out of the Florida game, the Eagles might have had the difference in spark that would have meant a win.

In any case the Alligators who had a strong Northern contingent on their club didn't have as much a basis for protest as even Auburn. The Alabamians will dress only two boys from above the Mason and Dixon line, the rest are all from the more or less deep South.

McGOWEN FINE PASSER

These include Dick McGowen and George Kenmore, alternate stars at the left halfback position. McGowen is touted as the best all around back seen in a decade of outstanding Auburns. As a sophomore he averaged 41.8 yards in 67 punts. He is an excellent passer, and a very dangerous runner.

Kenmore is an even smaller edition of chucking Charlie O'Rourke, weighing only 152 pounds, he led his team to victory over Michigan State in the Orange Bowl two years ago, with his accurate passing and sprinting.

Sports Mirror

A YEAR AGO TODAY—Solly Krieger outpointed Al Hostak, National Boxing Association middleweight champion, by wide margin in title match at Seattle.

FIVE YEARS AGO—New York Giants purchased Shortstop Dick Bartell from Phillies for $35,000 cash and four players.

Caswell to Play For Huskies

Northeastern's offensive hopes brightened considerably today when it was learned that little Jack Caswell will be available for relief duty against Springfield College next Saturday afternoon.

Caswell, who had no varsity experience until this year, has been one of Coach Jimmy Dunn's finds as a halfback. Despite his lack of weight, 141 pounds, he has been extremely valuable because of his speed.

Jack, who is one of the best dashmen in New England, played 60 minutes against New Hampshire. Ten days ago, though, he turned his ankle against Tufts and was unable to dress against Rhode Island last Saturday.

FOOTBALL FLASHES

By BILL GRIMES

A couple of hours before Holy Cross and Colgate clashed last Saturday, Peter McGrath, of the Record, who, as I see it, is the best posted and most reliable sports authority in this neck of the woods, and I arrived at the foot of Mt. St. James.

We put in an early appearance, so that Peter could meet, and I could huddle with Head Coach Joe Sheeketski. Peter is an alumnus of Holy Cross and follows the Crusaders, in all athletic activities, closer than bullets coming out of a machine gun.

I'm supposed to know my way around Holy Cross, especially to the extent of the locale of the varsity football squad's dressing room. But Peter overruled me and steered me into the new building, which harbors the post office. Trying to get within an arm's length of their mail boxes, looking for their allowance checks, the Holy Cross under-graduates were milling around. And, when Holy Cross students mill around, they mill around.

Before I was 10 feet inside the door, I thought that one of the varsity running guards was warming up. I was hit with a terrific block, which shook me from stem to stern. The second time I was in the path of a darting student, I was taken completely out of the play and wound up against "Sonny" O'Hare, the well known junior golfer from Hatherly.

CHECK VICTIM

"Hi Ya, Sonny, I'm glad to see you," I gasped. Where's the A. A." (Peter had informed me that the varsity dressed in the A. A.)

"Over there to the right," answered Sonny. "Did Buddy come up with you?"

"No, he got a break, for he'd have been killed in this jam," I replied, starting off to follow his directions.

Then, I walked into another body check and it would have been a dilly but for the fact that I caught a glimpse of the blocker just before he took off and beat him to it, with a hip check.

Joe Sheeketski

Peter had spent four years at Holy Cross. He should know all the answers. But, when I saw 'Athletic Director" on a door, I realized that I knew my way around Mt. St. James better than the illustrious Peter.

Few coaches appreciate visits from scribes before an important game. In fact, few will grant audiences under similar conditions.

SHEEKETSKI NERVOUS

But, Joe Sheeketski is not of that ilk. He was noticeably nervous but welcomed us as heartily as though we were messengers bearing Andy Kerr's plans for his Red Raiders' attack against the Crusaders.

"I'm ready to take off, worrying over what Colgate will do during the first five minutes," confessed Sheeketski. "They'll come up with some unorthodox football and we'll be all afternoon trying to recover."

Then Joe Sheeketski made an admission, which stamps him as one of the most courageous coaches in the gridiron game. When a football mentor comes right out in the open and ADMITS that a defeat should be charged against him and NOT his team, he's the one in a million who will make possible the payment of dividends.

"I made my debut as a college head coach in the Holy Cross-Manhattan game," confided Sheeketski," and when the Crusaders came through with a 28-to-0 victory, naturally I was 'high.'

"But I was disillusioned by the reports you scribes turned in for Sunday's and Monday's papers.

"I didn't see eye to eye with other coaches on many angles of the game. And, among the generally accepted theories, which failed to coincide, was the established tradition among the other coaches that all offenses are based on running attacks.

BANKED ON CAHILL

"I had made a careful study of aerial and ground attacks. And, finally, I came to the conclusion that forward passing is the coaches' salvation. I convinced myself that with Ronnie Cahill heaving that pigskin we'd pass our opponents dizzy.

"Undoubtedly, you recall that just as soon as I sent Ronnie Cahill into the Manhattan game, Holy Cross took to the air. But, it just so happened that before Ronnie was able to tie up any aerials for worthwhile gains, we marched down the field for a touchdown. That touchdown drive was featured by a 22 yard Andy Giardi run, which was made possible by a Frankie Saba block.

Ronnie Cahill

"On our way to the second touchdown, Ronnie threw five passes, three of which were completed, the last of which was to Joe Osmanski for a score. And, in the final period, Cahill passed to Giardi for another touchdown. Our last six points were the outcome of a fumble, which was recovered by Walter Walewski on Manhattan's 16, and on the next play Joe Osmanski faked a pass and went off the weak side for a touchdown.

"Now, you can visualize my reactions. I was about to revolutionize football. Forward passing was the key note to gridiron success. All attacks on the ground were subterfuges. Hadn't a forward pass built up the first touchdown and hadn't we scored twice through the air? Nothing to it.

"But, when I saw the Sunday and Monday papers, I was amazed to read that Holy Cross was wasting a powerful ground attack. And, some of the scribes were so blunt as to state that I'd never get anywhere until I'd made my running plays the major weapons of attack.

CAHILL CLASS OF PASSERS

"The comments of the sports writers started me thinking. 'How come you hit upon the solution of football coaches main problems, Sheeketski, in the first month you've been a head coach?'

"Then, I knew that I was all wet. And, boy, did I do some back pedaling. I still believe that there isn't a forward passer in the college ranks equal to Ronnie Cahill. But, I knew that Holy Cross had to get out from under.

"Unfortunately, we didn't have time between the Manhattan and L. S. U. games to click with our running attack. So, we blew that ball game. And, you can charge that one to Joe Sheeketski. It was a costly lesson and a mistake, I'll never again make."

Sloppy Track Drying For 'Dream Race' Epic

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1 (AP)—Bright sunshine with a nip in the air—welcome relief after two days of rain—bathed Pimlico's historic racing strip today for the third running of the Pimlico Special, pitting three great thoroughbreds in a glamorized test for the title, "Horse of the Year."

KAYAK II
Winner of $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, C. S. Howard's hope in $10,000 Pimlico Special.

The Special, conceived by Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Maryland Jockey Club president, along lines of a national championship, contest highlighted the club's opening program of its autumn meeting.

W. L. Brann's Challedon, T. B. Martin's Cravat and C. S. Howard's Kayak II, seemed invigorated by the snappy weather. They were filled with pep on their morning unlimbering jogs.

The track was sloppy early today KAYAK'S DUAL INCENTIVE and flecked with patches of water. The sun and a brisk breeze, coupled with efforts of tenders with rakes and harrows, promised to have the racing strip no more than heavy by post time at approximately 3:15 p. m. (EST).

In event of a dead heat in the Special, the $10,000 purse will be split unless the owners request a run-off.

Challedon, Maryland-bred three-year-olds champion and leading money-winner of the year, ruled the pre-race favorite to cap his splendid 1939 campaign with a victory that would insure for him the title "horse of the year."

The sturdy bay son of Challenger II and Laura Gal holds the world record of 1:54 3-5 for the mile and three-sixteenths—the distance of the $10,000 winner-take all, weight-for-age special. But even so his competitors were conceding him nothing.

Kayak II, four-year-old Argentine-bred son of Congreve-Mosquita had a personal grudge to settle with Challedon.

In their only previous meeting, the West coast sensation was beaten by Challedon in the Narragansett special and came out of it slightly lame.

Kentucky-bred Cravat, four-year-old son of Sickle-Frilette, by Man o' War, had a double incentive to win. He not only was entrusted with upholding the honor of the famous Blue Grass country, but was out to avenge his defeat by Kayak II in the Hollywood Gold Cup.

CALLEDON TOTES 120

Challedon, a year younger than Cravat and Kayak II, was assigned 120 pounds to 126 for his opponents. Cravat drew the No. 1 post position, on the inside rail. Kayak II. got the No. 3 spot on the outside and Challedon was in the middle.

A stipulation for the race, arranged by Alfred G. Vanderbilt, president of the Jockey Club, was that it would be run on schedule, no matter what the conditions and even if only one horse went to the post and a walk-over occurred.

Short Drill For Army

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 1 (AP)—Army held its last scrimmage before the Notre Dame game—a half hour affair on the big field house—after a long workout on assignments.

Coach Bill Wood covered all the plays that the Cadets may use against the Irish Saturday in the assignment drill.

There was no change at the line-up, Jim Dubuisson again running at wingback in place of Jere Maupin, kept on the sidelines by bruises. There is some doubt whether Maupin will be able to play Saturday.

Belloise Rallies To Win Verdict

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—A last-round rally enabled Mike Belloise of New York, former featherweight champion, to gain an eight-round decision over Jimmy Vaughan of Cleveland before 7000 fans at the Coliseum.

Spaniel Show Nov. 17 and 18

Cocker spaniels, those clever little sporting dogs, who have held first place in the nation-wide canine popularity polls for the past several years and regularly dominate the entry at most of the important dog shows, are mobilizing throughout the U. S. and Canada for their 18th annual Boston Specialty Show, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 17 and 18.

This event is the country's ranking breed specialty show, and is sponsored by the enterprising Cocker Spaniel Breeders Club of New England, which has aided immeasurably in putting the cocker where he is today.

WAKERLIS, HENRY SPLIT

NEW BEDFORD, Nov. 1 (AP)—Dem Wakerlis of Boston was awarded a split decision victory over George Henry of New York, in the 10-round main event of the Trojan Boxing Club show at the Bristol Arena.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA PASS

A STRONG pass play used by Howard Jones of Southern California is illustrated here. The ball goes to Back 1 from center. He fades, and Back 2, Back 3 and the end cut into the same passing zone so quickly that the defense cannot cover them all. In the illustration the passer tosses a short one to No. 2, although both No. 3 and the end are available receivers.

Thomas Kidding, Says Trainer

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 1 (AP) — The Sacramento Union said Babe Herman, former trainer of Harry Thomas, believed the Chicago fighter was "kidding somebody" with charges that his fights with Max Schmeling and Tony Galento were decided before the fighters entered the ring.

Herman, the newspaper said, was in Thomas' corner in New York in 1937 when Schmeling scored a knockout in the eighth round.

Herman was quoted:

"Thomas was kidding somebody when he says he was paid to throw that fight.

"It wouldn't have been possible to throw the Schmeling fight and me not know it.

"I knew what he could do and he felt every minute of the fight. It meant much to him to win and he knew it."

Herman said he quit Thomas after "he got in the upper class. He was hard to get along with."

M. A. H., Southie After Grid Title

to take to the muddy gridiron against South Boston.

There was that massive and powerful line that boasted John Yonakor and Garvese White on the wings, Walter Senier and Larry Kolka at the tackles; Bob Dickinson and Bob Barry in the guards, and center, Phil Barry.

Capt. John Zanelli, Gerry Cowhig, Leighton Hullum and Fran Walker were in the backfield with Joe Farrow, the bundle of peed, to be alternated with Walker and Hullum.

South Boston went into the tilt boasting 14-straight victories including three so far this campaign with Hyde Park, Jamaica Plain and Charlestown on its list of victims, Charlestown the only club to have crossed the City Pointer's goal line.

In this trio of Southie pop-overs, Harry "Hurricane" McDonough has turned in seven touchdowns, and this boy carried his team's offensive threat in his kicking, passing and ball toting.

And to make sure that McDonough had his opportunity to break loose, White has surrounded him with a trio of swell blocking backs. Albie Jarvis, Joe Kulis and Ed Malinowicz, three boys who can carry the mail when the occasion rises but are content to block so long as they win, made up the remaining backfield.

There were no changes in the line. Ed Connolly and Frank Morley were at the ends; Larry Boyle and Joe Ferrara at the tackles, Joe Zarkauskas and Capt. Bill Presking in the guards and Tom Nee at center.

You want a winner? The bet made here was on Mechanic Arts.

Oh, yeah, in the nightcap East Boston looked a bit stronger than Roslindale, in spite of the recent first triumph of Coach Fred Murray's squad a week back.

NOTRE DAME POINTS FOR 'IMPROVED' ARMY

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 1 (AP)—Army will be in a strategic spot to hang a knockout punch on a battered, somewhat tired Notre Dame football team next Saturday in New York.

No one knows this any better than the Irish thin man, Coach Elmer Layden.

Off the seasonal records, the West Point eleven doesn't shape up as a match for a team undefeated in five games and holding a chance for an undefeated year. But the fact that a comparison of scores makes the Irish the choice to win has the Notre Dame mentor worried no end.

DUE FOR LET-DOWN

"Recalling some of the games Notre Dame has had with Army, I'm convinced that the so-called underdog in this game should be made the favorite," Layden said today.

"We have to point for this game every year. Army always seems to play its best game against us—and its a cinch they'll come to Saturday's game the strongest they've been this season."

Should the Irish suffer a let-down Army could win—and Notre Dame right now is a long ways from being at top strength. The Irish, after five battles in which they have scored only 15 more points than the opposition, could stand an open date.

"It's been tough going," Layden said. "The boys are pretty well battered up, and at least five regulars need a rest. But we'll probably have to use them against Army."

For spirit, alertness and determination, Layden rates this Irish team the equal of any Notre Dame team he has coached.

SAGGAU NOT HIMSELF

The Irish have had to produce those qualities in big doses, principally because Bob Saggau, the only Irish triple threat back, has been handicapped by a leg injury suffered in the opener with Purdue.

But Notre Dame has come up with enough "oomph" to rise above every obstacle.

When the line played poorly the backs were "hot"—and vice versa. When placements from the field were needed to win—the kicks split the uprights.

In five games Army defeated little Furman, Centre and Ursinus, tied Columbia and lost to Yale, but Coach Bill Wood says the West Pointers will be "improved" against Notre Dame.

Landis in Hospital

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (AP)—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, was a patient at Passavant Hospital today—but he wasn't worried about it. He is 72 years old.

Landis answered the telephone personally and said:

"They've got me for what they call a check-up. They have been looking at my interior—and say it looks about the way it always did. I'll be out in a few days. Goodbye!"

Bauer Sparkles As Bruins Coast

The Bruins gave teammate Eddie Shore's Springfield Indians a 6-2 drubbing before a slim crowd of 1000 last night at the Arena.

With Shore, who played 30 minutes at right defense, performing in his customary fashion, the Indians were inspired into gaining first blood, for the opening goal was fired in by Lloyd Jackson. He teamed with Bomber Doran to complete the Indians' scoring in the second period.

BOBBY BAUER

Little Bobby Bauer caged two Boston goals, within the space of 25 seconds, and Dit Clapper, Art Jackson, Roy Conacher and Bill (Flash) Hollett were the others who beat Goalie Benny Grant.

Westenberg, Champ Casey Show at Arena

The "rubber" bout between Steve Casey and Marvin Westenberg will be staged tonight at the Arena where the heavyweight champion from Ireland defends his title against the former Shadow in a best two-falls-in-three affair. Paul Bowser is the promoter.

Westenberg, as the Shadow, dethroned Casey last year, but Steve came back a few months later to regain the perch.

Both are giants of 230 pounds, and both strong as bulls. It should be interesting.

Supporting bouts will show Dan O'Mahony, former champion, Yvon Robert, another former champion, and Ben Shalom, 250-pound Jewish grappler from Palestine.

The card:

MAIN BOUT

(Best Two Falls in Three)

Steve (Crusher) Casey, Ireland, Champion, vs. Marvin Westenberg, Tacoma, challenger.

SEMI-FINAL

Danno O'Mahony, Ireland, vs. Lord Albert Mills, England.

SPECIAL BOUT

Yvon Robert, Montreal, vs. Frank Judson, Attleboro.

PRELIMINARIES

Ben Shalom, Palestine, vs. Ed Neuman, New York.

Bobby Managoff, Chicago, vs. Ed Cook, New York.

First bout at 8:15. Main event about 10 o'clock.

MANHATTAN COACH NEW 'MIRACLE MAN'

Herb Kopf, assistant to the great Lou Little for years, has blossomed forth as a wonder coach at Manhattan and he will put his Jaspers on view before the local football followers next Saturday afternoon at National League Field against Boston University.

Although Little is known as the master of magic in offense, Kopf has even added a few tricks to the repertoire of his former chief. Manhattan uses four bewildering offensive formations with offense line spreads, a "flanker" back mixed with plenty of "dipsy do."

That "razzle dazzle" which was the vogue a few years ago has been brought back in good favor by its great success at Manhattan. It was baffling enough to beat Auburn and only the worst luck possible enabled Duquesne to edge the Jaspers by a touchdown.

Two gentlemen who are largely responsible for the success of this tricky offense are Joe Migdal, big veteran fullback, and Eddie Fay, sensational 180 sophomore triple threat halfback.

Migdal operates from the tailback and critics insist that he is the best ball handler and faker in college ranks since Vernon Struck was graduated from Harvard. In addition, Migdal is a great line plunger and has averaged better than three yards every time he has carried.

Auburn had such respect for Migdal that they played a tight defensive line figuring that if they could stop the Jasper fullback, they could bottle the Manhattan attack.
